Objectives

The course provides an introduction to the theory and practice of project management for urban planners. The course will begin by considering the stages of a project and the determinants of success. As part of this discussion, the course will consider issues of leadership, stakeholders, organizational structure and culture in developing a successful plan. Specific attention will focus on the qualities of an effective leader in building teams and creating systems for producing successful outcomes. In particular, the course will consider why some projects fail and others succeed. Finally, techniques will be presented for minimizing risk and project failure. A goal of this course will be to introduce tools useful in managing any project. Budgeting and cost estimation are both critical components of project planning. In this course, specific attention will focus on tools and techniques used for cost estimation and budgeting. As part of the course students will also be introduced to tools used by project managers in scheduling and allocating resources. Consideration will be given to financial analysis and other evaluation tools.

Teaching Approach:

In addition to lectures, there will be discussions on a wide range of topics including: team building, stakeholder management, project control, evaluation and risk management. Many of the lectures and class discussions will serve as an introduction to the study of the theory and practice of project management. During the semester students will have the opportunity to work with project management software used in cost estimation, budgeting and resource management. Tools used to produce budgets, Pert and Gantt charts will be a focus of software instruction. A group project will provide students with an opportunity to apply project management principles to problems encountered in professional practice.

Notes:

1. Written work, term assignments and other course related work may only be submitted by e-mail if prior permission to do so has been obtained from the course instructor. Submissions must come from an official University of Calgary (ucalgary) email account.
2. Academic Accommodations. Students who require an accommodation in relation to their coursework or to fulfil requirements for a graduate degree, based on a protected ground other than disability, should communicate this need, preferably in writing, to their Instructor or the designated contact person in EVDS, Jennifer Taillefer (jtaillef@ucalgary.ca). Students who require an accommodation unrelated to their coursework or the requirements for a graduate degree, based on a protected ground other than disability, should communicate this need, preferably in writing, to the Vice-Provost (Student Experience). For additional information on support services and accommodations for students with disabilities, visit www.ucalgary.ca/access/
3. Plagiarism - Plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:(a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),(b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,(c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,(d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course(although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved. While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted. Plagiarism is an extremely serious academic offence. It is recognized that clause (d) does not prevent a graduate student incorporating work previously done by him or her in a thesis. Any suspicion of plagiarism will be reported to the Dean, and dealt with as per the regulations in the University of Calgary Graduate Calendar.
