Course Description

This course focuses on the theoretical underpinnings of public engagement in the planning profession. It serves as a platform for the practice of public engagement, which will be a component of future studio work. The course provides students with an introduction to key social and political theories that inform participation and public engagement in the planning profession. Through a review of selected readings, in-class discussion, guest lecture presentations and case studies, students will have the opportunity to gain an understanding of the theories, models, typologies, and processes of participation and public engagement.

<https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/grad/current/planning-plan.html#45208>

This course follows a seminar format. Students will share the responsibility with the instructor for developing questions central to the course, maintaining open and thoughtful dialogue, and contributing to the development of an engaged community of inquiry. Meaningful discussions will depend on careful preparation and active participation. Students contributions will be evaluated throughout the semester. Given that this is a graduate seminar, students are encouraged to be reflective and critical of the issues addressed in class and in reading materials.

Each meeting period may include:

- a presentation by the instructor or guest speaker, class discussion, and small group activities related to the topic and assigned readings; and
- seminar presentations by students followed by class discussion and activities related to the topic and assigned readings.

Course Hours: 1.5 units; (3-0)

Course Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, students will know and be able to:

1. explore the range of ideas and theories related to engagement and participation;

Additional Classroom Conduct and Related Information

Guidelines for Zoom Sessions in Online Classes

Students are expected to participate actively in all Zoom sessions and to turn on their webcam. Please join our class in a quiet space that will allow you to be fully present and engaged in the Zoom sessions. Students must behave in a professional manner during the session. Students, employees, and academic staff are also expected to demonstrate behaviour in class that promotes and maintains a positive and productive learning environment.

Assessment Components

Weekly Assignments

Students will be assigned readings for each class session and are expected to read the material and prepare questions or comments related to the reading content prior to class. Synthesis of and response to weekly readings (Reaction Essay, up to 800 words) are due on Tuesdays, uploaded to D2L by 8pm.

WA1. Participatory Initiatives and Strategies

WA2. Participation and Communication

WA3. Public Involvement and Engagement

WA4. Governance and Engagement

Case Study Assignment

Students will research one case study to be presented in class.

These readings are recommended in preparation for the case study assignment:

- Forester, John. 1993. "Learning from Practice Stories: The Priority of Practical Judgement." In The Argumentative Turn in Policy Analysis and Planning, edited by Frank Fischer and John Forester, 186-209. Durham and London: Duke University Press.
- Sandercock, Leonie. 2003. "Out of the Closet: The Importance of Stories." Planning Theory and Practice. 4 (1): 11-28.

CS1. Case study abstract (200 - 250 words) identifying the initiative, plan, or opportunity that will make a good story to be told in your case study. Provide enough information to allow instructor to assess the story's pertinence and potential for a solid case.

CS2. Case study paper (2,000 - 2,200 words) exploring a specific planning initiative or project and telling its story from both a theoretical and professional practice perspective.

CS3. Case study presentation (4 minutes) summarizing story to class.

Assessment and Evaluation Information

Attendance and Participation Expectations

Students are expected to attend all classes, complete assignments, and contribute to class discussions. Because the course is structured as a seminar, student learning relies on readings, notes, intensive discussion in class and student presentations. Attendance is mandatory for all seminar presentations. Students are expected to present clear and concise arguments in plain English, respect the opinions of others, and participate actively in all class discussions.

Guidelines for Submitting Assignments

Specific requirements for each assignment are outlined on the course site in D2L. Assignments should be submitted through the LMS following the specified format for each assignment.

Students will be required to search relevant literature to complete the assignments.

Assignments are intended to encourage critical thinking, reflection on the readings, and connections to the real world. Students are expected to respect deadlines for papers and presentations; exceptions are detailed in section G.1.2 In-Course Assessments and Absences.

Final Examinations

There will be no final exam. To pass this course students must obtain a passing grade in all assignments.

Expectations for Writing (<https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-2.html>):

Writing skills should cross all disciplines. The University believes that students should be taught how to write well throughout their University career, so that they will have strong writing abilities when they graduate, far above the minimal standards required at entrance. Hence, students are expected to write well in their University courses, which requires that instructors use writing and the grading thereof as a factor in the evaluation of student work.

Students needing to improve their writing skills beyond what a normal course requires or who feel they require further assistance, should use the services provided by the Writing Support, part of the Student Success Centre.

Late Assignments

Students having difficulty meeting the requirements of the course should communicate with the instructor as soon as possible.

Criteria that must be met to pass

A student who receives a "C+" or lower in any one course will be required to withdraw regardless of their grade point average (GPA) unless the program recommends otherwise. If the program permits the student to retake a failed course, the second grade will replace the initial grade in the calculation of the GPA, and both grades will appear on the transcript
