Course Description

This course will introduce students to social and cultural anthropology. Drawing from case studies in the course text and from other sources, we will explore the fundamental issues and approaches within social and cultural anthropology. Topics of interest include the structure and function of society and essential institutions (e.g., marriage, religion, economy, politics, and gender) within societies. Emphasis will be placed on both the diversity of human culture and the commonalities that are found across human cultures.

Classes will consist of a lecture/discussion led by the professor on issues arising from daily topics, but not strictly mirroring material in required readings. Lectures will be supplemented by occasional guest lectures, videos and other media sources. Students are encouraged to pose relevant questions and participate with appropriate and respectful commentary.

Course Objectives

By the end of the course, students will be able to:

- Define anthropology and discuss its relevance in the modern world
- Identify the major subfields and specializations within anthropology

Policies

Note-taking and Instructor Availability:

It is not the instructor's policy to provide lecture notes and/or Powerpoint presentations on D2L. Although it may be done as a means of assistance, it should not be treated as an alternative to note-taking, as it will occur only at the instructor's timing and discretion. Students are expected to take their own notes and consult with peers over missed lectures. They are also encouraged to consult with the professor during office hours. Please regularly consult the course D2L page for news on classes, questions relating to readings, discussion points, and other useful information.

Electronic Devices in the Classroom

All cellular phones are expected to be turned off during class-time. Laptops may be used for note-taking by those sitting along the walls and at the back of the classroom. Should laptops become used for purposes not related to course material or in the designated areas of the classroom, this privilege may be removed for all class members.

Office Hours

To arrange a meeting during (or out of) office hours, send a request via email indicating the desired day and time as well as a brief reason. Please note that although the professor is available, they may not always be present in the office during office hours.

Email Etiquette

Please use your ucalgary.ca email address, or another email with an appropriate name. Include the class and a brief reason for your email in the subject line (when emailing from D2L the class is already included). Open your email with a salutation directed to me (for example, 'Dear Professor Chmilar'), do not use 'Hey'. If you have multiple questions, separate each into its own paragraph so all can be easily identified. Write in full sentences. Do not use abbreviations (for example, 'lol') or emoticons. Close your email by signing your name.

All email will be replied to in a prompt fashion. Students can expect a reply within 48 hours (not including weekends or holidays), provided the email etiquette has been followed.
