Course Description

This course provides students with an introduction to the vocabulary and practices of the visual style, sound design, and narrative form of motion pictures. Early lectures focus on the separate components of filmmaking, such as cinematography, mise-en-scène, editing, and sound, as well as the terminology of analysis. Using these building blocks, we will then look at the larger units of scene, narrative, and the rhetorical dimension of film form. The course will also provide a broad overview of selected topics such as experimental, documentary, and genre film while engaging key issues related to the representation of gender and race on screen. The course aims to enhance the experience of viewing films, shed light on the creative processes that generate them, and prepare students for further work in film studies.

Additional Information

The weekly schedule of topics, screenings, and readings can be found at the end of this outline and on D2L. Students are responsible for reading and following all course and university policies discussed in this outline.

Attendance at your weekly tutorial session is mandatory and will be noted at every tutorial session. Students must come prepared to discuss the week's pre-recorded lecture, screening, and assigned reading. In accordance with university policy and to continue to protect the most vulnerable members of our community, students attending in-person tutorials are required to wear masks.

Also, because the class will represent a diversity of individual beliefs, backgrounds, and experiences, every member of this class must show respect for every other member of this class. Our course materials and classroom discussions will often focus on mature, difficult, and potentially challenging topics. Some of us will have emotional responses to these topics; some of us will have emotional responses to our peers' understanding of these topics; all of us should feel responsible for creating a space that is both intellectually rigorous and respectful while being mindful of the ways that our identities position us in the classroom. As your instructor, I value your voice and perspective and am firmly committed to equity, diversity, and inclusion in this course and in all areas of campus life.

Objectives of the Course

- Students develop the analytic, expressive, and imaginative abilities needed to understand works of film and media.
- Students recognize constituent parts of a film and the processes of cinematic production.

- Students relate works of film or media to the broader human context (e.g. historical, social, ethnic, economic, geographic) in which they are created, including, for example, how a film is linked to the filmmaker’s culture and identity.
- Students learn to think, speak, and write critically and clearly regarding film and media analysis.

Textbooks and Readings

Students seeking an accommodation based on disability or medical concerns should contact Student Accessibility Services (SAS); SAS will process the request and issue letters of accommodation to instructors. For information on support services and accommodations for students with disabilities, visit www.ucalgary.ca/access/. Students who require an accommodation based on a protected ground other than disability should communicate this need in writing to their Instructor. For the full policy on Student Accommodations, see <https://www.ucalgary.ca/legal-services/university-policies-procedures/student-accommodation-policy>

Students seeking accommodation for transient illnesses (e.g., the flu) or another legitimate reason should contact their instructors. Whenever possible, students should provide supporting documentation to support their request; however, instructors may not require a medical note. For information on the use of a statutory declaration, see the University Calendar: <https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/m-1.html>

Expectations for Writing

Department policy directs that all written assignments and, to a lesser extent, written exam responses be assessed at least partly on writing skills. Writing skills include not only surface correctness (grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, etc.) but also general clarity and organization and proper documentation of research sources. For further information, please refer to the University of Calgary Calendar section on writing across the curriculum: <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-2.html>

Grading & Department of Communication, Media and Film Grade Scale

The following table outlines the grade scale percentage equivalents used in the Department of Communication, Media and Film. Final grades are reported as letter grades. For components graded using percentages or numerical scores, those values will be used directly in calculating the final course grade, while for components graded using letter grades, the letter grades will be converted to the midpoint values listed in the final column of the table below in calculating the final course grade.

In this course, percentage grades or numerical scores will be used for all assessments.

Grade Point Value	Description	Grade	Dept of CMF grade scale equivalents*	Letter grade % equivalent for calculations*
4.00	Outstanding performance	A+	96 - 100%	98.0%
4.00	Excellent performance	A	90 - 95.99%	93.0%

* Column 4: If percentages are used to calculate final grades, then grades falling within these ranges will be translated to the corresponding letter grades. Column 5: These percentage equivalents will be used for calculating final grades unless an alternative method of final grade calculation is outlined above.

Plagiarism

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possibly suspension or expulsion from the university. These requirements apply to all assignments and sources, including those in non-traditional formats such as Web pages or visual media.

You must document not only direct quotations but also paraphrases and ideas where they appear in your text. A reference list at the end is insufficient by itself. In-text citations must be provided, and readers must be able to tell exactly where your words and ideas end and other people's words and ideas begin. Wording taken directly from a source must be enclosed within quotation marks (or, for long quotations, presented in the format prescribed by the documentation style you are using). Paraphrased information must not follow the original wording and sentence structure with only slight word substitutions here and there.

For information on citation and documentation styles (MLA, APA, Chicago, IEEE, etc.), visit the Student Success Centre resource links at <https://ucalgary.ca/student-services/student-success/writing-support> or the Purdue Online Writing Lab (OWL) Research and Citation Resources at https://owl.purdue.edu/owl/research\_and\_citation/resources.html
