COURSE OUTLINE – Fall 2020

Course: GRST 499.2: Ancient and Medieval Historiography (Fall of the Roman Republic)

Time: Tuesdays & Thursdays, 2:00-3:15 pm Calgary time. This is an online class.

Instructor: Dr. Lindsay Driediger-Murphy

Office Hours: Tuesdays & Thursdays, 3:30-4:30 pm Calgary time, or by appointment

Office: Office hours will be held remotely using Zoom

Telephone: Contact the instructor by email

Email: ldriedig@ucalgary.ca

Instructor's email and communication policy:

I want to hear from you! I am here to help with your questions about the course content and assignments. You can count on me to log into our course multiple times per week to update material, contribute to discussions, and answer questions.

In general, the most efficient way of getting answers to your questions is to ask them during the weekly synchronous video sessions, or during my Zoom office hours (Tuesdays & Thursdays, 3:30-4:30 pm Calgary time). That way I can respond to your questions immediately in real time.

Questions about Course Content

You can also post questions about course content to the Discussion Forum (on D2L) for the relevant topic. If you have a question about the material, other students probably have that question, too. So by posting your question you can help everyone in the class. I am happy to answer questions about the material we are covering in this course!

If you need to keep your question confidential, please email the instructor.

Questions about Assignments and Course Policies

If you have a question about course policies or assignments, please start by checking the course outline and the 'Assignments' section of D2L.

If your question isn't answered in the course outline or 'Assignments' section of D2L, please check the 'Course Questions' section of D2L. This is where I will clarify assignment instructions, submissions procedures, due dates or other issues related to the course.

If your question isn't answered in 'Course Questions', please ask the instructor during synchronous sessions, or email the instructor.

If a question received by email or during office hours is helpful for the whole class, I will anonymize it (so that your privacy is protected) and answer it in 'Course Questions'. I will tell you if I am answering your question there.

Frequency and Methods of Communication

I will hold drop-in office hours on Zoom on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 3:30-4:30 pm Calgary time. These will be first-come, first-served. To ensure your privacy, I will meet with you one-on-one. If I am speaking with another student when you join the Zoom office hour, you will be given a spot in Zoom's 'waiting room' until I am able to meet with you.

I will respond to questions posted to D2L or received by email as soon as I reasonably can. I may not be able to reply immediately. I will handle course communications on weekdays during regular business hours (9:00 am-5:00 pm Calgary time).

I understand that you may work on this course during evenings and weekends. If you have a time-sensitive matter to discuss, please contact the instructor as soon as you can. I can help you better when you give me sufficient time to consider your situation or request.

If your question is complex or requires a longer discussion, I will email you to arrange a video or phone appointment. If there's something you'd prefer to discuss by video or phone, you can email the instructor to arrange an appointment.

Course description:

This course explores ancient and modern explanations for the collapse of the Roman Republic. We will focus on a key moment in Roman history, the deadly struggle between Catiline and Cicero for the survival of Rome in the 60's BCE. We will analyze how the 'Catilinarian Conspiracy' is documented by two major sources for Roman history: the speeches of Cicero (Catilinarian Orations) and the historical monograph of Sallust (Catiline's Conspiracy, also known as The War with Catiline). These sources have exerted significant influence on how modern historians have understood the events and causes of the fall of the Roman Republic. In this course we will consider both ancient and modern approaches to the topic, seeking to learn from Cicero, Sallust, and their interlocutors how we should (and shouldn't) write history.

Expectations for student conduct in this course:

The more you read, prepare for class ahead of time, and participate in seminars and discussions, the better you are likely to do in this course. Do the assigned reading. Be prepared to discuss what you have read. Participate in class activities and discussion. Do additional reading to build your own independent knowledge of the subject. In the assignments, you will be expected to give evidence of your own reading.

Online learning is a change for many of us: let's build community in this class by connecting kindly and helpfully with each other. During synchronous sessions, please close other windows and pause other chats, music, audio, or calls on your devices, so that you can give your colleagues your respectful concentration. Further guidelines for online etiquette for this course will be announced in class. Your cooperation is appreciated!

We will not be using the private chat function in Zoom: all chat messages need to be directed to the instructor and will be accessible to the entire class.

Please note that participants in synchronous sessions are required to use names officially associated with their UCID (legal or preferred names listed in the Student Centre) when engaging in these activities. Instructors/moderators can remove those whose names do not appear on class rosters. Non-compliance may be investigated under relevant University of Calgary conduct policies (e.g. Student Non-Academic Misconduct Policy). For more information on how to get the most out of your zoom sessions visit: <https://elearn.ucalgary.ca/guidelines-for-zoom/>.

The instructor may record online Zoom class sessions for the purposes of supporting student learning in this class – such as making the recording available for review of the session or for students who miss a session. Students will be advised before the instructor initiates a recording of a Zoom session. These recordings will be used to support student learning only and will not be shared or used by the instructor for any other purpose.

Further guidelines for online etiquette for this course will be listed in the 'Assignments' section of D2L. Your cooperation is appreciated!

Academic Honesty:

Academic integrity is fundamental to scholarship and learning. It is a core value of the University of Calgary. Our community is built on honesty, trust and integrity. At university, maintaining academic integrity while earning your degree represents your true academic accomplishments.

Violations of academic integrity are termed academic misconduct. The University of Calgary Student Academic Misconduct Policy states that academic misconduct is any student behavior that compromises proper assessment of a student's academic activities.

To maintain academic integrity, instructors and students make reciprocal commitments.

As your instructor, I commit to:

- Communicating the academic integrity rules for assessments in this course
- Answering your questions about academic integrity for assessments in this course
- Monitoring academic integrity, in order to ensure fair marks for all students in this course
- Upholding standards of academic integrity, in order to protect the value of your degree and the learning of all students at the University of Calgary

As a University of Calgary student, you commit to:

- Completing assessments individually and without unauthorized assistance. This means that you must not cooperate, collaborate, or otherwise give and/or receive assistance in completing academic activities without the instructor's permission (this kind of misconduct is called unauthorized assistance). Actions prohibited as unauthorized assistance include: working with a study group to complete an individual assignment; getting someone else to write your paper; using a file sharing website to access completed assessment; using Word's track changes in a friend's essay to rewrite sentences and explain ideas; sharing your assignments with other students in the course, or borrowing other students' assignments to see how they did them; asking someone else (including other students in this course) to write, rewrite, edit, or produce content for what you submit. You have permission to discuss ideas and research strategies with other students in this course, but all the work you submit must be completed by you individually as defined here.
- Referencing the ideas, expression of ideas or work of another individual appropriately. This means that you must not present other peoples' ideas, expression of ideas, or work as your own (this kind of misconduct is called plagiarism). Actions prohibited as plagiarism include: copying and pasting content from websites, study sites, or or file sharing sites; using all or a portion of someone else's work without appropriate acknowledgement (failing to quote, paraphrase or cite correctly); purchasing or otherwise acquiring work and submitting it as your own original work; submitting prior work for evaluation in another course, or in a subsequent attempt of the same course, without the express approval of the instructor teaching the second course or subsequent attempt (self plagiarism). Requirements for referencing for each assignment will be provided by the instructor. Plagiarism is not tolerated at the University of Calgary and has serious consequences. Your essays/presentations must be your own work and inadequate referencing may be seen as plagiarism.

- Completing assessments honestly, using only the opportunities and material authorized and available to all students in the course. This means that you must not try to give or gain an improper advantage in academic activities (this kind of misconduct is called cheating). Actions prohibited as cheating include: copying from another student's work; conversing with another student during an examination; having, using or attempting to use unauthorized material or devices during an examination or other academic activities; attempting to read another students' exam papers; obtaining assistance from another in completing coursework.

- Using only genuine and accurate data and records, and respecting and preserving the integrity of academic results. This means that you must not create or use false records or data in your assignments (this kind of misconduct is called fabrication) or alter or attempt to alter work or records for academic gain (this kind of misconduct is called falsification). Actions prohibited as fabrication include: creating or using false transcripts, documents, or research results; citing work that does not actually exist. Actions prohibited as falsification include: altering transcripts; attempting to change recorded grades; impersonating another student; manipulating, changing or omitting source material, data, methods or findings.

- Complying with the instructor's expectations and University of Calgary requirements in completing academic assessments and exams. This means that you must not violate the rules of academic integrity or contravene academic integrity instructions for assignments in this course (this kind of misconduct is called failure to comply). Actions prohibited as failure to comply include: not complying with an instructor's expectations regarding conduct required of students in completing academic assessments; not complying with the exam regulations applied by the Registrar.

By taking this class you agree to these conditions. If you have any questions about this, please contact the instructor.
