Course Description:

While many traditional religious practices are regaining popularity in contemporary India, pilgrimage has witnessed the meteoric growth in popularity and participation that is unmatched in other types of religious practice. Why is it that religious places and spaces remain so popular, even as the influence of secularism expands in modern India and throughout the world? How, exactly, is geography “religious”? This course will address these questions by investigating the religious geography of India. We will examine the concept of sacred place and space in Indic (primarily Hindu) traditions, survey the many sacred sites of the sub-continent, and explore the pilgrimage practices associated with these sites.

Online elements for this course:

( if any)

A full syllabus, additional readings, detailed assignment instructions, and an assignment dropbox can be found on D2L.

Core Competencies:

By the end of the course, students will be familiar with the religious studies dimensions of human geography and have a firm understanding of the historical, textual, and anthropological tools that scholars use to understand sacred sites and the religious practices associated with them.
