Course Description:

This course will explore the developing field of Place Studies and its application within Christian Origins and Late Antiquity Christianity. Place Studies is an interdisciplinary field that embraces: Human and Cultural Geography; Philosophy; Social Theory; Gender Studies; Cultural Studies; Planning; Architecture and Material Culture. In its most simplistic expression, it is the concern with the creation of place; this creation results from the dialogue between landscape, human action, and meaning-making. Specifically, this course will explore the utilization of Place Studies within the socio-historical reconstruction of early Christianity.

Outcomes:

The course is intended to develop specific core competencies and skills. These will include: 1) critical and creative thinking/reasoning, 2) problem solving, 3) interpreting information, 4) awareness and ability to deal with diversity, 5) responding critically to both primary and secondary materials, 6) creating knowledge from information, 7) communication skills and 8) persuading and influencing others. The seminar format of the course means students will be interactive participants in the presentation of the course material and they will engage in one major research project that is designed to model graduate work. Finally, one of the major elements of the course will be the analysis of the symbiotic relationship between various research questions and methodological approaches.
