Course Description:
This course focuses on the economic and empirical analysis of the transportation industries. Conceptual topics include the demand for transport, analysis of direct and external costs, pricing and investment, competition and regulation. Within this conceptual framework, the course focuses on urban and intercity transportation, passenger and freight transportation, domestic and international transport markets, and the various modes of transportation.

Students who successfully complete this course will:

a) develop familiarity with sources of transportation industry data and introduced to collecting, collating, and summarizing transportation data for the purpose of understanding transportation markets.

b) develop familiarity with transportation and location, including Weber's conceptualization of the importance of transportation cost on industrial location, the importance of transportation cost on rent gradients, the importance of transportation cost in determining geographic market areas in a Loschian model of spatial competition (Capozza and Van Order, 1978).

c) develop familiarity with demand for freight transportation, including transport demand being derived from the demand for the underlying commodity for freight transportation.

d) develop familiarity with the demand for passenger transportation, including the value of travel time savings and the ways in which it can be quantified.

e) develop familiarity with important cost concepts, including economies of scale, scope, density, length-of-haul, massed reserves, and economies of network size.

f) develop familiarity with pricing in transportation, including class-of-service pricing, backhaul pricing, Ramsey pricing, peak-load pricing with and without a shifting peak.

g) develop familiarity with congestion pricing in theory and evaluating the effects of congestion pricing in practice.

h) develop familiarity with the evaluation of transportation infrastructure investment.

i) develop familiarity with the economic regulation of transportation, and the economic effects of the surface and air transport deregulation.

j) develop familiarity with the role of transportation in economic development.

k) develop the skills necessary for the critical evaluation of news stories about transportation sector.

l) be able to produce a twelve-page written report on a petroleum markets topic that combines conceptual economic ideas (at the level of Econ 201), market institutions, and simple descriptive empirical analysis.

Programmable calculators, cellphones, textbooks, course notes, and other electronic devices will not be allowed during the writing of tests. Students are reminded that simply being able to access a cellphone during an exam is academic misconduct.
The dates for the three in-class tests are February 1st, March 7th, and April 4th. The due date for the Written Term Project and Video Presentation in the D2L Dropbox is April 14th @ 9AM.

This course has no final examination. Instead, the course emphasizes writing and speaking/presentation skills. Grading Policies:

The official grading system will be used. See http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/f-1-1.html.

Students must receive a passing grade on the written term project AND video presentation to pass the course.

If a student’s letter grade on the project exceeds their quizzes letter grade, the weights of the quizzes are transferred to the final exam. The student must have written the quizzes or provided supporting documentation for the absence(s).

As per the Writing Across the Curriculum Statement in the Calendar, writing and grading thereof will be a factor in the evaluation of student work. See https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-2.html.
