Course description:

Have you ever told a joke about a serious subject or issue? Have you ever laughed at a joke, or funny statement about a serious subject? Do you like comedians who make you laugh to make you think? If you answer yes to any of these questions, then you have participated in the ancient device of satire and there is a very good chance that you will laugh, and think, in this class. This course will provide instruction in critical reading and writing through the exploration of stories that use humour to generate critical commentaries on various aspects of society. How can humour be used to generate meaningful statements about society? What cultural relevance does satire hold, if any, in the context of the twenty-first century? What is the relationship between satire and other forms of political commentary? Is satire an effective form of political protest? How does satire facilitate the critical engagement with uncomfortable, perhaps even unspeakable, subjects of gender, race, politics, class, and other significant aspects of life and society? Our analytical engagement with these stories - reading, thinking, discussion, research and writing - will produce an exploration of these and other questions, challenges, issues and implications, generated through and connected to these examples of literary satire.

Attendance

- There is no explicit grade for attendance in this course. However, students should be aware – since each class, in a variety of ways, will develop skills and deliver information needed to score effectively on assignments – that in most cases there is a direct, implicit correlation between attendance and the student’s ability to produce a successful experience in this course. In addition, attendance is one component used at the end of the course “when rounding upwards or downwards when the average of term work and exams is between two letter grades.”

Participation

- There is no explicit grade for participation in this course. However, students should be aware that student participation in various ways (questions, comments, discussions, debates, arguments, presentations etc.) will be a key feature and an important tool to facilitate student success in this course. Students are encouraged, but not required, to speak in class and effective participation can be just as much the act of attentive, engaged listening and thoughtful consideration as insightful speaking. Since our readings will lead us into a wide range of critical investigations of social, cultural, historical, aesthetic and political issues, and since the class is a relatively large, diverse group of human beings with different ideas, opinions, arguments and positions on the issues and ideas the stories present, this course will proceed with a fundamental tone of respect, tolerance, and thoughtful consideration of the ideas of others (the instructor for students, students for the instructor, and students for each other). This guiding tone of respect does not mean that ideas, opinions, and arguments, expressed by students or instructor, cannot be challenged and debated from other positions and through different arguments. Indeed this can and should be an interesting and engaging aspect of our course. It means that when we disagree we try to persuade others through offering a more convincing argument. When students engage this sort of participation they further develop skills required to produce success on assignments and exams. This is one key reason for why, in most cases, there is a direct implicit correlation between participation and the student's ability to produce a successful experience in this course. In addition, participation is one component used at the end of the course "when rounding upwards or downwards when the average of term work and exams is between two letter grades."

Assignment Information

- There is a Registrar scheduled final exam in this course. Term examination dates are available at the following address: (Calendar, Academic Schedule; <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/exam-schedule.html>). Students must be available for examinations up to the last day of the examination period (Dec 12-22)
- Except for reading quizzes, students must complete all assignments in order to receive a passing grade for the course.
- There are no extra credit assignments in this course.
- Unless specifically directed to do so, there is no electronic submission of assignments.
- All assignments must be handed in at the beginning of the class in which they are due. After this they are considered late.

Assignments submitted after the deadline will be penalized with the loss of a third of a grade (an A- to B+) for each business day [not class] that the assignment is overdue. Please make every effort to take assignments directly to the instructor. If it is not possible to do so, take your assignment to SS 1152 and put it in the drop box. Your assignment will be date-stamped and placed in the instructor's mailbox. It is your responsibility to keep a copy of all assignments in case of loss by any cause. Assignments cannot be returned by staff in the Department office.

Policy on Electronic Devices

Over the last few years an increasing number of students report that they find device use for non-class purposes by their peers to be distracting and as an instructor, I find, through much experience, that the distraction is amplified and can negatively affect the class as a whole. While I understand that laptops have become a necessity for many students and accept their use for notetaking or other course tasks, I request that their use be limited to course concerns while we are in class. I further request, as a courtesy to other students and your instructor, that phones be left in your bags or pockets during class lectures and discussions except in cases where course texts are accessed through your phone. I too will adhere to the same policy and will extend the same courtesy and consideration to you by not having my phone out and active for other concerns while we are working in class together.

E-mail: I encourage students to use office hours for questions and course concerns. I check student emails as part of my office hour commitments during the week. This means that I read student email during office hours if no students are present or shortly after office hours during the week. Students should not expect that I have seen emails at any other time. My expectations are that students can email me to notify me of important or emergency situations (family emergencies, accidents, illnesses etc.). Questions and comments about course lectures and discussions are also acceptable, although in most cases I will respond to the question or comment at the beginning of the next class. Students should not assume that email is a substitute for missing class. If you miss class it is your responsibility to get the material from one of your peers and then to bring any further questions or discussions into office hours. Further all questions about writing or format or assignments, or the solicitation of my opinions or suggestions regarding your writing should be stated in class for the sake of efficiency and time management or in office hours.

Grading system:

In this course, your final grade will be marked on the University of Calgary's four-point Undergraduate Grading System, as described in the Calendar: <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/f-2.html>

A+/A (4.0); A- (3.7); B+ (3.3); B (3.0); B- (2.7); C+ (2.3); C (2.0); C- (1.7); D+ (1.3); D (1.0); F (0)

All quizzes and exams will receive a numerical grade to be converted using the following scale:

90 + %	A+	4.0
85 – 89 %	A	4.0
80 – 84 %	A–	3.7
77 – 79 %	B+	3.3
74 – 76 %	B	3.0
70 – 73 %	B–	2.7
67 – 69 %	C+	2.3
64 – 66 %	C	2.0
60 – 63 %	C–	1.7
55 – 59 %	D+	1.3
50 – 54 %	D	1.0
0 – 49 %	F	0

Please note that, according to the University Calendar (F.1), instructors may use their discretion when rounding upwards or downwards when the average of term work and exams is between two letter grades.

Although the A+ is solely an honorific that entails no additional points in the 4-point system, the course instructor will employ this mark to distinguish superlative work that exceeds expectations in style, correctness, intellectual depth and breadth, sophistication, and originality.

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.

The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:

- (a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
- (b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
- (c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
- (d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student's work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH STATEMENT ON PRINCIPLES OF CONDUCT

According to the University Calendar, (<http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/j.html>)

“The University of Calgary community has undertaken to be guided by the following statements of purpose and values: to promote free inquiry and debate, to act as a community of scholars, . . . , to respect, appreciate, and encourage diversity, [and] to display care and concern for community”. The Department of English, like the university as a whole, is committed to a “positive and productive learning and working environment.”

This environment is characterized by appreciation and encouragement of diversity and respect for the dignity of all persons: students, support staff, and faculty. The department will not tolerate unacceptable behaviour, such as threatening gestures, threatening or abusive verbal or written communication (including e-mails), or any conduct that “seriously disrupts the lawful education and related activities of students and/or university staff”. Any cases of such misconduct should be reported immediately to the department Head, who, depending on the nature and severity of the incident, may then take further appropriate action.
