Office Hours:	11:00AM by appointment on Zoom.

Course description:

Where do texts come from, and where are they going? Do texts belong to their authors? Or are they the properties of society? Can both be true? This class will dig into these questions alongside a more central one: how exactly do texts respond to and influence society? In this class, we will examine texts and their emerges from places of frustration, curiosity, necessity, or from no clear place at all. We will look at how those origins (i.e. how their authors wrote in response to the world around them) compare to how we are readers, and society at large, respond to them. We will ask ourselves how much of a text is the words on the page, and how much of it is the dialogue and image crafted after the writing and reading is done.

Our journey will take us from the Medieval to the Modern. From poetry to video games. We will examine texts from voices on the very margins of society to help us truly understand how texts evolve and adapt and how powerful the written word can be. I hope you enjoy these fascinating works.

Course learning outcomes:

This course will involve the reading of several texts alongside consistent group discussion both inside and outside class. This is mandatory and essential for humanities courses. You will also learn the essentials of researching and writing academic papers alongside the skill of close reading of texts, which will help better inform your ability to analyze a text in its historical and contemporary contexts.

Upon successful completion of this course, students will have:

1. Read and discussed texts from across the English, and world, literary canon.
2. Understand and interpret literary texts in relation to their historical and cultural contexts.

3. Learned how to research and analyze critical sources in preparation for writing academic papers.
4. Write a convincing academic paper using the conventions of English as an academic discipline.
5. Engage in meaningful conversations about literature with peers.
6. Engaged in the class in an interdisciplinary manner by involving their own scholarly background.

Texts and readings:

Piers Plowman Book 1 (On D2L)

- Supplemental Reading: Steven Justice, "Writing and Rebellion" (On D2L)

Othello (On D2L)

Harlem Duet (Bookstore)

Three Stories by Jorge Luis Borges (On D2L)

The City We Became (Bookstore)

Zom-Fam (Bookstore)

Split Tooth (Bookstore)

Gone Home (Steam, or any home video consoles, also <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Ak4wU8Gp2RQ>)

Learning technology requirements:

Students will need to have access to a laptop computer or smartphone in class time. There is a D2L site for this course which contains required readings and other relevant class resources and materials (see d2l.ucalgary.ca).

Email Contact and Communication

I am available by email. I generally try to respond to student emails within the hour. In the 24 hours prior to assignments being due, I am "on-call," which means I try as much as possible to respond to emails within 20 minutes.

Assessments and Evaluation:Group Journals – 15%

Due – Each monday at the beginning of class (in either case)

In groups of no larger than 8, assigned at the beginning of the class. You are responsible for holding weekly online discussions on D2L. I will personally set up the different chatrooms. However, you may determine for yourselves if you wish to hold live, synchronous chats at a scheduled time, or asynchronous chats on the D2L chatrooms. Meet with your groups and decide together.

Synchronous Chats: This must be done on the D2L chatroom (No discord, sorry!), without video, and everyone from the group must be involved. I'm very pro-Zoom, and video chat in general, but I need to see the text. You will discuss that week's text. You will all give your observations of the text's strengths, weaknesses and most importantly how does this text respond to the world of its writing? And how does it respond to the world today? After the chat, someone must compile a list of everyone present that week and a general summarization of the observations made.

Asynchronous Chats: Organizing weekly meetings is challenging! So, instead, you might opt for the asynchronous option. In this, you will use a discussion room on D2L that I have set up for your group. Weekly, you are to write your thoughts on the week's text, its' strengths, weaknesses, and how it responds to the time of its writing, and to today. You will also offer a question for your group: for example, "I thought Langland's use of distance helped me understand his feelings on religion and society. Did anyone have a different perspective on that?" Starting with the second week, you are to offer an answer to one of your group member's questions in addition to your thoughts.

At the end of term you will have supported one another towards this participation grade.

Bibliography and Research Assignment – 10%

Due – Sept 27th, before class

This assignment will utilize the library. Using one of our first two texts, Piers Plowman or Othello, and one of the following themes, you are required to compile a short bibliography of research sources in MLA format. The themes are: Dreams, Law, Religion, Death, Power, Wealth, Queerness, Race, Gender, Violence, Adaptation, Translation, Distance, Rebellion, Plague, Elizabeth, or Colonization.

You will find some work better for one text or the other. You may use one of your own, but it must be approved by me, and I encourage you to try the suggested list first. The sources must include the following:

- 2 Book Sources
- 2 Book Chapters
- 4 Journal Articles
- 2 Miscellaneous Sources (Youtube videos, online lectures, blogs, news articles, films [documentaries are a good sources], interviews, etc. Don't be afraid to ask!)

After you compile and arrange your sources. Write a short explanation of how you searched for them and what you discovered. What mistakes did you make? What did you learn? Were there any sources you considered but chose not to use?

You will be graded on the accuracy of your MLA formatting as well as the relevancy of your sources. A source on your theme not connected to the text can be included if you justify its inclusion well in your introductory statement.

Critical Review – 10%

Due – Oct. 11, before class

This assignment will see you choosing one of the non-miscellaneous sources you selected for your bibliography and writing a 500-word critical review of the source. What makes this source a good example of scholarship? How does it lay out its arguments? Does it do so clearly? What is the strength of its hypothesis, is it followed through well? How does the article address the text in a way that shows close reading and deep thinking about the text? Does the article include thinking about matters beyond the text? How are those connected into its argument? Do they overpower the text or balance it well? What are the strengths of its conclusion?

You don't have to answer all of these, but they should give you an idea of what you should be looking for when doing a critical review. Basically, I do not want a short essay that says "This article makes no sense." If that is your argument, then I would like to know what specifically the writer does that prevents you as the reader from following their argument. Nor do I want to see, "this is a really smart article." Why is it smart?

I advise you not to choose a book, due to their length, and instead choose either a book chapter or journal article.

Critical Essay – 20%

Nov. 15, before class.

Compile a 2000 word essay on one of the semester's texts up to that point. Or, if you have read ahead, one of the later texts. Topics will be presented by October 1, or you may decide your own. Topics will be about the theme of the class. You must cite a minimum of three secondary sources in your paper.

Your paper must have a strong introduction, argument, and conclusion with a properly formatted works cited page in MLA.

Final Creative Project – 25%

Dec. 6, before class.

Your final project will stem from your own interests and academic pursuits. Choose one of the semester's texts and devise a significant creative project inspired by it. Think big. For instance, if you are a business student, perhaps you would like to design and propose a café inspired by one of the texts. Perhaps you are a drama student and want to turn one of the texts into a devised theatre piece. Perhaps you might develop a short video game inspired by one of the texts (I once made a Beowulf-based video game for a class, anything is possible). Regardless, your idea must be pitched to me for approval. I want to be sure you have done sufficient work for this project. Your project must also include a written component explaining and justifying your choices (five pages max).

You may also team up for this in groups no larger than three. If you choose to, your written component will require a full justification and explanation of everyone's role so I can be assured everyone participated fully. You will all share a single grade.

Alternatively, you could choose to write another essay. 2500 word maximum, four secondary sources. Topic of your own devising, approved by me.

Final Exam – 20%

Date TBD, Modality TBD students must be available for examinations during the entire Examination Period December 13-Dec 22.

All assignments will be submitted electronically on D2L, with the exception of the non-written portion of the Final Project, which will be submitted conditional on its form.

Attendance and participation expectations:

Students are expected to attend class regularly and to be fully present and engaged in class activities and discussions. These are part of the participation grade, as outlined in the assessment components section above. A rubric with detailed information about the assessment of participation is available on the course D2L site. If students miss a class session that is included as a component of participation, and wish to receive credit for that day's work, they must contact the instructor within 24 hours to discuss options to make up that component.

Conduct:

Students, employees, and academic staff are also expected to demonstrate behaviour in class that promotes and maintains a positive and productive learning environment. As members of the University community, students, employees, and academic staff are expected to demonstrate conduct that is consistent with the University of Calgary Calendar, the Code of Conduct and Non-Academic Misconduct policy and procedures, which can be found at: <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k.html>

Policy on use of electronic devices:

The use of laptop and mobile devices in class is acceptable when used in a manner appropriate to the course and classroom activities. Please refrain from accessing websites and resources that may be distracting to you or for other learners during class time. Students are responsible for being aware of the University's Internet and email use policy. Electronic devices are not permitted during the Final Examination.

Grading System:

90 + %	A+	4.0	67 – 69 %	C+	2.3
85 – 89 %	A	4.0	64 – 66 %	C	2.0
80 – 84 %	A–	3.7	60 – 63 %	C–	1.7
77 – 79 %	B+	3.3	55 – 59 %	D+	1.3
74 – 76 %	B	3.0	50 – 54 %	D	1.0
70 – 73 %	B–	2.7	0 – 49 %	F	0

I prefer to use the numerical grading system. However, I will give a letter grade on d2l with a numeric grade in your feedback. The above rubric should be helpful in clarifying.

Academic Integrity:

This course, like all courses at the University of Calgary, holds students to high standards of honest and responsible scholarship. Please consult the Academic Integrity website for a detailed description of university policies, which will be enforced in this course. Cases of suspected academic misconduct will be referred to the Associate Dean of Arts for a ruling.

Plagiarism is a type of academic misconduct. Plagiarism occurs when a student presents the ideas, expression of ideas, or work of another person as their own. Another equally serious form of plagiarism occurs when a student submits something they have written themselves for credit in two or more courses without first securing written permission from all those course instructors. Consequences for plagiarism include failure on the assignment, failure in the course, and possible suspension or expulsion from the university. Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense.

Deferral of term work and final examinations:

Should you require an extension for completion of term papers or assignments beyond the deadline of five days after the end of lectures, an Application of Deferment of Term Work must be completed. It is the student's responsibility to initiate this process with the instructor. The University also has regulations governing the deferral of final examinations.

Grade appeals:

To pursue a Reassessment of Graded Term Work or a Reappraisal of an Academic Assessment, Consult the University Calendar and request advice from the English Department at engl@ucalgary.ca. Please note that mere dissatisfaction with a grade is not sufficient grounds for an appeal.

Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy

Student information will be collected in accordance with usual classroom practice. Students' assignments will be accessible only by the authorized course faculty and teaching assistants. Private information related to the individual student is treated with the utmost regard by the faculty at the University of Calgary.

Research Ethics [delete section if not applicable]

- If a student is interested in undertaking an assignment that will involve collecting information from members of the public, they should speak with the course instructor and consult the CFREB Ethics (<http://www.ucalgary.ca/research/researchers/ethics-compliance/cfreb>) before beginning the assignment.
- If students are going to be used as research subjects or expected to conduct research (such as interviews), a statement about this expectation must be included. Please note that if you plan to have students conduct research for class, you must get ethics approval for the course.
