Winter 2020

COURSE TITLE: Literature for Young People

Instructor: Dr. Eden Lackner

Office: SS 1020

E-mail: eden.lackner@ucalgary.ca

Office Hours: Mondays 14:00-15:00 & Tuesdays 11:00-12:00 or by appointment.

Course Description: This course is a critical and historical exploration of children's and young adult literature. Throughout the semester, we will consider the strangeness of children's literature, as a genre that is named for its intended audience; is difficult to precisely define; provokes strong debate amongst critics and readers regarding the content of its texts; inspires endless adaptations, transformations, and appropriations; and often challenges popular understandings of what, precisely, childhood is. Through lectures, group discussions, and a variety of assignments, we will consider the ways in which we define children's and young adult literature, grapple with the expectations that surround the genre, and conceptualize writing for children or reading children's literature as adults. This course emphasizes engaged, considered readings of these works, and focuses on how children's and young adult literature navigate the division between escapism and education.

Assignments and Evaluation:

Unless otherwise indicated, all assignments are due at the beginning of class on their corresponding due dates. Please make every effort to hand in assignments as directed, either online through our Desire2Learn course website, or directly to the instructor. If you are unable to submit online or in person, take your assignment to SS 1152 and put it in the dropbox. It will be date-stamped and placed in the instructor's mailbox. Assignments placed in the dropbox after the office closes will be stamped with the following day's date. Regardless of how you submit, your assignments must have both your name and Dr. Lackner's on the first page to assure that the office staff are able to direct your work to the correct mailbox.

Late assignments will lose a fraction of a grade per day (not per class) unless an extension has been granted. (Ex: An assignment submitted two days late that would have earned a B will instead receive a C+.) No assignments will be accepted one week past the assignment deadline without the prior consent of the instructor. While you are not required to complete all assignments in order to pass the course, you are strongly encouraged to do so; even one missed assignment will significantly impact a student's final grade.

All assignments must be typed, double-spaced and submitted online/in hard copy (paper) form as instructed. For hard copy assignments, double-sided printing is encouraged, as is the use of recycled paper, or even paper that has already been used on one side (draw a line diagonally through the material printed or written on the "wrong" side and make sure your pages are stapled together in the correct order).

Students are responsible for keeping copies of all assignments in case of loss of any kind. Only the instructor is able to return assignments to students; they cannot be returned by staff in the Department office.

There will be no extra credit assignments or opportunities to redo and resubmit your work. Do the best work you can on each assignment before you submit it.

Class Reflections (10%):

Keeping current with course materials allows for a stronger understanding of the ideas and concepts under discussion in the class. On five to seven occasions, students will be assigned a discussion question pertaining to the texts and ideas relevant to the day's lecture. Students will be presented with a question related to the coursework, and will be expected to respond in a short paragraph engaging with these texts and themes. This paragraph will be due 24 to 48 hours after the question has been assigned. These reflections will be administered on a surprise basis. Failing to turn in the reflection within the 24-48 hour window will result in a grade of zero for the missed assignment. Each student's lowest grade will be dropped to mitigate unavoidable occurrences. (Reflections will be submitted online, via D2L.)

Picture Book Project (25%):

Engaging creatively with a text is a way to facilitate alternate forms of literary criticism. For this project, students are encouraged to explore intertextuality by examining a course-assigned text in a creative form. Students will create a picture book (with accompanying critical commentary) which will exist in dialogue with a course text, identifying and emphasizing the themes, tropes, and critical concerns at work in the assigned story. For this assignment, students may work independently or in groups (maximum of 3 people).

Students choosing to work in a group will be assigned a common grade. Groups will need to inform the instructor of the composition of the group within a week of assignment distribution, and will submit a document alongside the project detailing each student's contributions. Students choosing to work as a group are expected to contribute equally; students who fail to contribute equally to the project will be assigned a separate grade based on available evidence of their individual work.

Mid-Term Exam (15%):

Understanding what critical concepts mean and how to apply them to texts is invaluable in persuasively presenting ideas. The mid-term exam will provide students with a chance to consider the texts and concepts already covered in the course as well as work on argument formation, time- and stress-management skills.

Close Reading Research Essay (30%):

Considering our own interpretations in the context of larger academic and critical conversations is an important step in formulating strong arguments. For this essay, students will pursue their chosen lines of inquiry with reference to texts and authors covered in the course and related academic criticism. This essay of 750-1000 words will incorporate 2 secondary scholarly sources which will support and help build the student's own argument. Each essay will be accompanied by an MLA formatted bibliography listing both the primary and secondary texts consulted. (Essays will be submitted online, via D2L.)

Final Exam (20%):

The final exam marks the culmination of our work throughout the course. The class will have an open-book, take-home examination which will be due during the (now-cancelled) exam period, at 5:30pm on Saturday, April 18th. Students will receive the exam in advance, and will be allowed adequate time to complete it. (Exams will be submitted online, via D2L.)

TOTAL: 100%

Grading System:

Course grades are based on the University of Calgary four-point Undergraduate Grading System and the standard percentage conversion chart of the Department of English:

90+%	A+	4.0
85–89%	A	4.0
80–84%	A–	3.7
77–79%	B+	3.3
74–76%	B	3.0
70–73%	B–	2.7
67–69%	C+	2.3
64–66%	C	2.0
60–63%	C–	1.7
55–59%	D+	1.3
50–54%	D	1.0
0–49%	F	0

Please note that, according to the University Calendar (F.1), instructors may use their discretion when rounding upwards or downwards when the average of term work and exams is between two letter grades.

Although the A+ is solely an honorific that entails no additional points in the four-point system, the course instructor will employ this mark to distinguish superlative work that exceeds expectations in style, correctness, intellectual depth and breadth, sophistication, and originality. There is no D- grade.

Plagiarism:

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possible suspension or expulsion from the university. Please refer to the following information and make sure you are familiar with the statement below on plagiarism:

<http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k-2-1.html>

Preparation for Class:

Always bring the text(s) listed on the weekly reading schedule to class with you unless otherwise instructed by the professor. Consult the schedule well before every class and listen carefully to additional instructions given at the end of each lecture so that you know which materials we will be using during the next class.

It is critically important that you bring the texts we are scheduled to discuss with you, as close and detailed readings of each work under discussion are the cornerstones of studying literature. Similarly, you are expected to have read and engaged with each text before the corresponding lecture on that work. As with all courses, preparation is the key to understanding. Relying on getting a general sense of a book or lecture from class discussion without putting in the time to read and consider the material we are covering will not serve you well in this course or any other.

Class Participation:

Regularly attending classes, arriving prepared, participating respectfully in discussions and making an effort to intellectually engage with the material, instructor and your fellow students will enhance your learning process and contribute to a positive classroom environment. Students are expected to be active participants in the formulation of knowledge in this course, rather than passive consumers. These steps will also help develop your ability to articulate your ideas and shape your arguments, which will serve you well across the various facets of your life.

Take notes. Do not rely on merely copying down what the instructor writes on the board and nothing more. Memory is faulty, and attempting to recall the details of a class discussion held weeks ago without notes to refer to is a losing proposition.

Policies Regarding Electronic Devices in the Classroom:

Please restrict the use of electronic and mobile devices to course-related functions within the classroom. If you want or need to text, phone, surf the 'net or otherwise employ such devices for personal and other non-course-related functions, please quietly exit the room for the duration of the class. Please turn off or silence all cell phones when the class is in progress. Situations in which students need to be available or on call during the class may be permitted if previously discussed with the instructor.

The instructor reserves the right to eject anyone causing any kind of disruption from the classroom, including electronic disruption.

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.

The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:
 - a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
 - b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
 - c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
 - d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student's work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:

<http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/747/01/>

Students who are absent from class assessments (tests, participation activities, or other assignments) should inform their instructors as soon as possible. Instructors may request that evidence in the form of documentation be provided. If the reason provided for the absence is acceptable, instructors may decide that any arrangements made can take forms other than make-up tests or assignments. For example, the weight of a missed grade may be added to another assignment or test. For information on possible forms of documentation, including statutory declarations, please see <https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/m-1.html>.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH STATEMENT ON PRINCIPLES OF CONDUCT

According to the University Calendar; <https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k-2.html>

“The University of Calgary community has undertaken to be guided by the following statements of purpose and values: to promote free inquiry and debate, to act as a community of scholars, . . . , to respect, appreciate, and encourage diversity, [and] to display care and concern for community”. The Department of English, like the university as a whole, is committed to a “positive and productive learning and working environment.” This environment is characterized by appreciation and encouragement of diversity and respect for the dignity of all persons: students, support staff, and faculty. The department will not tolerate unacceptable behaviour, such as threatening gestures, threatening or abusive verbal or written communication (including e-mails), or any conduct that “seriously disrupts the lawful education and related activities of students and/or university staff”. Any cases of such misconduct should be reported immediately to the department Head, who, depending on the nature and severity of the incident, may then take further appropriate action.
