Course description:

This course provides a rough survey of the development of what came to be called Canadian literature, in English, from the late 18th century to 1950. We will closely examine the relationship of writing to the colonial project, and will situate the writing in its historical context. We will read travel narratives, memoir, poetry, novels, short fiction, and a play. Pre-requisite: ENGL 302 and either 240 or 340.

Texts and readings:

Online readings (available on D2L) include:

Susanna Moodie, Roughing it in the Bush

Pauline Johnson, selected poems

Martha Ostenso, Wild Geese

Assignments and Evaluation:

Participation	10%
Review of poetry volume	20%
Midterm exam	15%
Group presentation	10%
Registrar-scheduled Final exam	20%
Research Paper	25%
	100%

Participation will be a measure of your attendance and preparation for class, and your contributions to class discussion, through both responding to and asking questions. This will be in part self-assessed; on our last meeting, you will submit to me the grade (out of 10) you believe you deserve for participation, given these criteria, as well as a written justification for that grade. I reserve the right to raise or lower that grade, depending on my own observations of your participation. I will also maintain some quantitative data over the course of the term (i.e. noting attendance, occasional non-binding pop quizzes, group work).

The review of a poetry volume will be a review of a book of poetry by one of the four early poets we are studying - Isabella Valancy Crawford, Archibald Lampman, Duncan Campbell Scott, or Pauline Johnson – selected from the Orbach collection in the Taylor Family Digital Library (TFDL). You will also locate, likely but not necessarily in an online database, a review of the book from when it was published. Your review will be in part a response to that contemporary review. More details of this assignment will be provided in class.

The group presentation will ask you, in small groups, to share with the class contextual materials relating to the text or topic of the day. Examples include materials relating to 19th century immigration to Canada, to the residential schools program, to the history of the radical leftist movements in early 20th-century Canada, or to the development of tourism in Alberta's national mountain parks. Many of these materials will be found in the archives of the TFDL; you group will visit the archives, take digital images of some of the materials, post them to D2L to share with the class, and then briefly present on them in class. Further details on this assignment will be provided in class.

You will write an eight-page (2000 word) research paper on one of the longer texts we are studying. This paper will be due late in term.

There will be a midterm test and a final exam. The final exam will be cumulative, and will be scheduled by the Registrar. Students must be available for examinations up to the last day of the examination period (Dec 11-22).

You do not have to complete all assignments to receive a passing grade in this course. Assignments submitted after the deadline will be penalized (e.g. with the loss of a third of a grade for each day [not class] that the assignment is overdue). Extra-credit assignments will not be offered.

Note: Please make all efforts to take assignments directly to the instructor. If it is not possible to do so, take your assignment to SS1152 and place it in the drop-box. Your assignment will then be date-stamped and placed in your instructor's mailbox. Please keep a copy of your assignment in case of loss by any cause. Assignments cannot be returned by staff in the Department office. E-mailed submissions will not be accepted and will be deleted.

Note regarding technologies:

Please turn off all communication devices during class. Laptop computers are acceptable in class as long as they do not present a distraction to others. I reserve the right to ban computers from the class if anyone's computer presents a distraction. I am happy to answer inquiries via email but please note that proper e-mail etiquette should be followed, and what you consider 'urgent' may not be considered urgent by others. I will not respond to inquiries over e-mail regarding matters I have addressed in class. You are encouraged to meet someone in the class early in term and exchange e-mails so you can help one another if one person misses a class.

Note regarding textbooks:

Much of this class will involve close readings from literary texts. As such, students are required to have the texts to be discussed with them in class, including hard copies of materials posted to D2L. Students who consistently do not have the texts with them in class will receive a grade of '0' for participation, after a written warning from the instructor.

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.

The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:

- (a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
- (b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
- (c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
- (d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student's work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH STATEMENT ON PRINCIPLES OF CONDUCT

According to the University Calendar, (<http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/j.html>) "The University of Calgary community has undertaken to be guided by the following statements of purpose and values: to promote free inquiry and debate, to act as a community of scholars, ..., to respect, appreciate, and encourage diversity, [and] to display care and concern for community". The Department of English, like the university as a whole, is committed to a "positive and productive learning and working environment." This environment is characterized by appreciation and encouragement of diversity and respect for the dignity of all persons: students, support staff, and faculty. The department will not tolerate unacceptable behaviour, such as threatening gestures, threatening or abusive verbal or written communication (including e-mails), or any conduct that "seriously disrupts the lawful education and related activities of students and/or university staff". Any cases of such misconduct should be reported immediately to the department Head, who, depending on the nature and severity of the incident, may then take further appropriate action.
