Course description:

Globalization is a widely discussed issue in postcolonial studies and other disciplines, and yet questions about the representation of remain underexplored. How are the intricate interconnections of a globalized world to be represented? How might the aesthetic strategies of writing and art depict and critique an immense process that often seems to be invisible, but deeply impresses itself on the daily lives of peoples around the world? What strategies are required to represent the emergent relations between regions of a globalized world? How does a writer begin, as Fredric Jameson writes in his book on film The Geopolitical Aesthetic, “to think a system so vast that it cannot be encompassed by the natural and historically developed categories of perception with which human beings normally orient themselves”? (2). In response to Jameson’s question, I would suggest that the effort to represent globalization is to be found in the cultural productions of contemporary writers and this course will explore ways in which contemporary writers have negotiated the tensions and contradictions around globalization.

The course will examine new perspectives in criticism which attempt to move beyond older postcolonial models of “writing back.” As such, it addresses questions about the understanding of postcolonial (or global or cosmopolitan) literatures that are currently emergent in the field. A particular goal in this course is to give students experience in reading and assessing both literary theory and secondary writings on fiction.

Texts and readings:

Gibb, Camilla. The Beauty of Humanity Movement.

Hari Kunzru. Transmission.

Teju Cole. Open City.

Marina Lewycka. Strawberry Fields.

Helon Habila. Oil on Water.

Readings from Literature and Globalization: A Reader. Eds. Liam Connell and Nicky Marsh

Plus selections of short fiction.

Assignments and Evaluation:

Short Essay (2-3 pages; about 750 words)	15%
Seminar presentation, based on one of the fiction readings (written version handed in)	20%
Research essay Proposal (300 words)	10%
Research essay (4000—5000 words)	45%
Participation	10%
	100%

The participation grade recognizes that knowledge is a collective creation and that everyone benefits from the participation of class members. I expect members of the class to attend having completed the assigned readings and to participate in discussions.

There is no registrar-scheduled examination in this course.

It is not necessary to complete all assignments to receive a passing grade in the course.

There are normally no extra-credit assignments.

Assignments submitted after the deadline will be penalized with the loss of a third of a grade (an A- to B+) for each business day [not class] that the assignment is overdue.

If you are not able to make a deadline because of illness, family crisis or other unusual situation, please contact me as soon as possible.

Please make every effort to take assignments directly to the instructor. If it is not possible to do so, take your assignment to SS 1152 and put it in the dropbox. Your assignment will be date-stamped and placed in the instructor's mailbox. It is your responsibility to keep a copy of all assignments in case of loss by any cause. Assignments cannot be returned by staff in the Department office.

Grading system:

Grades are calculated according to the 4 point scale used in the Graduate Calendar:

<http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/grad/current/gs-e-1.html>

Grade	Grade Point Value	Graduate Description
A+	4.00	Outstanding
A	4.00	Excellent-superior performance showing comprehensive understanding of the subject matter
A-	3.70	Very good performance
B+	3.30	Good performance
B	3.00	Satisfactory performance
B-	2.70	Minimum pass for students in Faculty of Graduate Studies
C+	2.30	All grades below B- are indicative of failure at the graduate level and cannot be counted towards Faculty of Graduate Studies course requirements.
C	2.00
C-	1.70
D+	1.30
D	1.00
F	0.00

Split grades on assignments are also calculated according to the Graduate Calendar grading system, e.g., an A/A- is a 3.85; a B/B- is a 2.85. Also note that the University Calendar states that the instructor has the "discretion to round off either upward or downward to determine a final grade when the average . . . is between two letter grades."

Although the A+ is solely an honorific that entails no additional points in the four-point system, the course instructor will employ this mark to distinguish superlative work that exceeds expectations in style, correctness, intellectual depth and breadth, sophistication, and originality.

Please note that, according to the University Calendar (F.1), instructors may use their discretion when rounding upwards or downwards when the average of term work and exams is between two letter grades.

E-mail: For this class, please reserve e-mail for emergencies (for example, if you are ill and cannot make a deadline). For general inquiries about class material, please post a question on Blackboard or ask in class. If you wish to discuss an assignment, either before it is due or after it is given back please come to my office hours or make an appointment to talk to me. Assignments cannot be submitted as e-mail attachments.

Technology in the classroom: Please turn off all communication devices during class. You may use a laptop computer or tablet to take notes or follow electronic texts during class, but only for that purpose.

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.

The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:

- (a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
- (b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
- (c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
- (d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student's work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:
