Please note: The appropriate emergency evacuation assembly point for all classes taught in Earth Sciences is the ICT Food Court.

Official Course Description:

The course will provide students with analytical tools to help them understand spatial phenomena and to stimulate their critical thinking about space and spatial processes. The course will focus on the properties of spatial data and their effects on quantitative analysis. Students will learn an array of spatial analytical models, understanding their hypotheses, benefits, and limitations; they will learn to choose the most appropriate techniques for different research questions and spatial data. Concepts and theories of spatial analysis will be discussed, with reference to landmark and current literature.

Prerequisite: Consent of the Department

Learning Resources:

Recommended: one of the following textbooks:

Rogerson, P.A., 2015. Statistical Methods for Geography. Sage Publications Ltd., London.

Fotheringham, A. S., Brunson, C., Charlton, M., 2000. Quantitative Geography. Perspectives on Spatial Data Analysis. London: SAGE.

Fortin, M.-J., Dale, M. R. T., 2005. Spatial Analysis. A Guide for Ecologists. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.

Additional material will be suggested in class and made available on D2L.

Grading/Weighting

Labs	30%
Assignments	25%
Final project	45%

Class Participation is not formally graded, but students are strongly encouraged to share their ideas, contributions, and questions in class.

Lab exercises are due at the beginning of the lab session the week after the assignment (unless otherwise specified).

The final project is an opportunity to perform an insightful spatial statistical analysis on a research topic chosen by each individual student. Detailed guidelines for the project completion will be provided in class.

SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION

Writing across the Curriculum

Writing skills are not exclusive to English courses and, in fact, should cross all disciplines. The university supports the belief that throughout their university careers students should be taught how to write well, so that when they graduate their writing abilities will be far above the minimal standards required at entrance. Consistent with this belief, students are expected to do a substantial amount of writing in their university courses and, where appropriate, faculty members can and should consider quality of writing as a factor in the evaluation of student work. The services provided by Writing Support Services can be utilized by all undergraduate and graduate students who feel they require further assistance: www.ucalgary.ca/ssc/writing_support/overview.

Academic Accommodations

It is the student's responsibility to request academic accommodations, according to the university policies and procedures listed in the University Calendar.

The student accommodation policy can be found at: www.ucalgary.ca/access/accommodations/policy. Students needing an accommodation because of a disability or medical condition should communicate this need to Student Accessibility Services in accordance with the Procedure for Accommodations for Students with Disabilities: www.ucalgary.ca/policies/files/policies/student-accommodation-policy.pdf.

Students needing an accommodation based on a protected ground other than disability should communicate this need, preferably in writing, to the Department Head (email: geograph@ucalgary.ca).

Principles of Conduct

The University Calendar includes a statement on the principles of conduct expected of all members of the university community (including students, faculty, administrators, any category of staff, practicum supervisors, and volunteers), whether on or off university property. This statement applies in all situations where members of the university community are acting in their university capacities. All members of the university community have a responsibility to familiarize themselves with the principles of conduct statement, which is available at: www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k.html.

Plagiarism, Cheating, and Student Misconduct

The University of Calgary is committed to the highest standards of academic integrity and honesty. Students are expected to be familiar with these standards regarding academic honesty and to uphold the policies of the University in this respect.

Academic dishonesty is not an acceptable activity at the University of Calgary, and students are strongly advised to read the Student Misconduct section in the University Calendar at: www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k-3.html. Often, students are unaware of what constitutes academic dishonesty or plagiarism. The most common are (1) presenting another student's work as your own, (2) presenting an author's work or ideas as your own without adequate citation, and (3) using work completed for another course. Such activities will not be tolerated in this course, and students suspected of academic misconduct will be dealt with according to the procedures outlined in the calendar at: www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k-5.html.

Internet and electronic communication device information:

There is no restriction on the use of laptops and tablets in class if they are used to take notes or find information relevant to the class, and if there is no disturbance or distraction of other students or the instructor. Phones must be turned off during class, unless you have previously identified yourself to the instructor as a health care or law enforcement professional. The use of any calculators and/or devices during examinations will not be allowed.

Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy

Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy (FOIP) legislation in Alberta disallows the practice of having students retrieve assignments from a public place, such as outside an instructor's office, the department office, etc. Term assignments will be returned to students individually, during class or during the instructor's office hours; if students are unable to pick up their assignments from the instructor, they must provide the instructor with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to be used for the return of the assignment.

Posting of Grades and Picking-up of Assignments

Graded assignments will be returned by the instructor or teaching assistant personally during schedule lecture or laboratory periods, unless they are made available electronically through the course D2L webpage. Grades and assignments will not be available at the Department of Geography's main office.
