Course Description

This graduate course is designed to provide a critical survey of the key issues and problems in the 'construction' of the field of Geography throughout history and its relationships with other fields of enquiry. This will provide an essential background to a survey of the contemporary methodological and philosophical debates about its nature, from such issues as the scientific approaches of the 1960s and their utility, the humanistic reactions, through structuralism and post structuralism, radicalism, the new ecological and technical approaches, gender geography, post-modernism, and hermeneutic perspectives, especially the critical practice approach and the new cultural geography. In addition, questions such as the decline and relevance of traditional fields such as regional geography, and new trends such as globalization will be addressed.

Required Reading

D. Livingstone (1992). The Tradition of Geography. Blackwel. BUY.

Other readings will be provided throughout the class from various essays and books especially:

W.K.D. Davies. Writing Geographical Exploration. Univ. of Calgary Press. 2003. Chapters 2 and 3;

J. Matthews and D. Herbert, Unifying Geography: Common Heritage, Shared Future. 2004.

In addition, parts of other books will be used, such as P. Cloke et al. (1991) Approaching Human Geography. A. Holt-Jansen "Geography: History and Concepts"; R. Peet (1998) "Modern Geographical Thought" (1998); D Gregory (1996) "Geographical Imagination" will be used.

Plagiarism

Academic dishonesty is not an acceptable activity at the University of Calgary and students are strongly advised to read the Student Misconduct section in the University Calendar. Quite often, students are unaware of what constitutes academic dishonesty or plagiarism. The most common are 1) presenting another student's work as your own 2) presenting an author's work or ideas as your own without proper referencing and 3) using work completed for another course. This activity will not be tolerated in this course and students conducting themselves in this manner will be dealt with according to the procedures outlined in the calendar.
