HTST 327: Europe in the Era of Religious War,
1559-1715
Winter 2014
Tuesdays/Thursdays 8:00-9:20
Taught by Dr. Jeff Suderman

The seventeenth century was an age of extremes. It lived through civil and religious wars, regicide, economic crises, plagues, witch hunts, as well as a little ice age. But it was also the age of Shakespeare, Rembrandt, Versailles, philosophical rationalism, and the Scientific Revolution. Were all of these seemingly incongruous events symptoms of a more general crisis of authority? Join us, but only if you like your history messy.
