

HTST 381 Military History II
Dr. Paul Chastko

MWF 0900-0950 HOURS
ST 145

This course is part of an introductory sequence in military history that covers the period from 1750 to 1945. The class will examine elements of continuity and change in military history including the political, social, and economic contexts; institutional, technological, and cultural developments that influenced the military art; civil-military relations, industrialization and the professionalization; the evolution of strategy and tactics and life at “the sharp end.” Underpinning our discussions will be a consideration of the concept of “total war.” Course components include a midterm, term paper, and final exam.
