Course Description

This course is an introduction to moral philosophy. There are different sorts of moral appraisal. Some concern the evaluation of actions; for example, what makes right acts right? Others concern the evaluation of character. When is a person virtuous? Yet others concern the evaluation of persons. Under what conditions, for instance, is a person blameworthy for something? Still others concern the assessment of lives. When is a life good in itself for a person? We will examine moral theories of each of these types of appraisal.

Prerequisites: N/A

Course Learning Outcomes: Students should be able to

1. Distinguish among different sorts of moral appraisal including appraisals of right and wrong, good and evil, virtue and vice, and moral responsibility.
2. Explain key ethical concepts, such as being obligatory, being intrinsically good, and being morally responsible.
3. Read and comprehend philosophical texts in ethics.
4. Critically analyze ethical issues to be discussed.
5. Write a convincing argument for or against fundamental ethical issues, such as whether pleasure is the sole intrinsic good or whether responsibility requires freedom to do otherwise, to be discussed.
6. Engage in constructive oral argumentation regarding relevant concepts, principles, or theories introduced in the course.

Course Assessment

There will be four in-class quizzes, the first two each worth 25% of the total grade, and the last two each worth 10% of the total grade. In addition, there will be one paper, to be submitted in class, worth 30% of the total grade. Writing and the grading thereof is a factor in evaluation. Writing should be clear, coherent, and to the point. There will be no provisions for “extra-credit.” There will be no borderline adjustments to your final mean score for the course. For example, if your overall score (89%) is 1% short of an A (90%), your overall grade will not be changed from an A- to an A. A passing grade on any particular component of the course is not required for a pass in the course as a whole. You may use a computer to access handouts or readings for the course and to take notes.

Tentative Assignment Dates:

Quiz 1 (in class, closed-book)	Thursday, January 31

Quiz 2 (in class, closed-book)	Thursday, March 14
Quiz 3 (in class, closed-book)	Thursday, March 28

No late papers will be accepted and you will not be able to take a quiz at any time other than the time at which it is scheduled without official and adequate documentation.
