Office Hours: M 11-1

Course Description

We're going to tackle the following question: what is (linguistic) meaning? We'll begin by reading several articles by Frege and extracting a number of influential theses about meaning. The rest of the semester will be dedicated to further examination of these theses. Our topics will include the sense/reference distinction, the concept/object distinction, compositionality, and the relationship between truth and meaning, among others.

Prerequisites:

Two previous courses in Philosophy, one of which must be either 279 or 377, and one of which must be a 400 or higher level course; or consent of the Department.

Course Learning Outcomes

Students who complete this course will have a grasp of some of the key theoretical issues that underlie the effort to develop a systematic semantic theory for natural language. This will give them the tools to understand a large swath of contemporary work in philosophy of language. Students will also be required to write a series of papers in which they interpret and analyze complex ideas and arguments.

Required Texts (available at the campus bookstore):

- Beaney, Michael (ed.) The Frege Reader.
- Kripke, Saul. Naming and Necessity
- Stalnaker, Robert. Inquiry.

Course Assessment

- Four short (approx. 350 word) papers. Each worth 10% of the total grade. Due dates: Jan. 24rd, Feb 7th, Feb. 28th, Mar. 14th.
- One final paper in two drafts. Rough draft is worth 3%, final is worth 52%. Rough draft due March 28th. Final Due April 15th.
- Peer review: worth 5% of your grade. Due April 4th.
- Late assignments are penalized 1/3 letter grade per (calendar) day.
- There will be no registrar-scheduled final exam.

IMPORTANT DEPARTMENTAL, FACULTY AND UNIVERSITY INFORMATION

Academic Honesty

Cheating or plagiarism on any assignment or examination is regarded as an extremely serious academic offense, the penalty for which may be an F on the assignment, an F in the course, academic probation, or requirement to withdraw from the University. See the relevant sections on 'Academic Misconduct' in the current University Calendar. Intellectual honesty requires that your work include adequate referencing to sources. Plagiarism occurs when you do not acknowledge or correctly reference your sources. If you have questions about correct referencing, consult your instructor.

Academic Accommodation

The student accommodation policy can be found at: ucalgary.ca/access/accommodations/policy.

Students needing an Accommodation because of a disability or medical condition should communicate this need to Student Accessibility Services in accordance with the Procedure for Accommodations for Students with Disabilities <http://www.ucalgary.ca/policies/files/policies/student-accommodation-policy.pdf>.

Students needing an Accommodation based on a Protected Ground other than Disability, should communicate this need, preferably in writing, to their instructor.
