Course Description

Over the past decades, feminist theorizing has provided insightful analyses about the important social issues of our time, analyses that remains helpful and relevant today. Since their inception, feminist movements have stressed the importance of theory, based on the understanding that effective social change can only be brought about through clear understandings about social systems, and clear visions about alternative ways of organizing society. This class will offer students an in-depth understanding of three important strands of feminist theorizing.

Prerequisites:

None

Course Learning Outcomes

- Understand the broad range of issues feminists are concerned about.
- Understand three important kinds of feminist theorizing.
- Consider the relevance of feminist theorizing in today's world.
- Appreciate the practical implications of feminist theorizing and action – and social change generally – in everyday life.
- Deepen our critical/holistic thinking skills.
- Work to establish a vibrant learning community based on respect and support.

WARNING:

Some of the materials and topics in this class may include explicit written or audio-visual content (violence, sexuality, objectionable or illegal conduct). If these materials make you uncomfortable, you are encouraged to speak with the professor. You will not be exempt from any assigned work but we will work together to accommodate your concerns. This class respects difference and diversity while welcoming thoughtful, critical debate and discussion.

Student Agreement and Other Important Matters:

Students are expected to carefully read the Student Agreement, and sign it, after our first class. The Student Agreement explains important issues having to do with creating a respectful environment, ensuring confidentiality, setting up a distraction-free classroom, and so forth. If a student has concerns about the Student Agreement and needs to speak to me in order to negotiate a modified agreement, you need to come to discuss this with me. Otherwise, I expect that all students will sign the document, and follow the guidelines stated there.

Responsibility for attending and fulfilling the requirements for all aspects of the course resides with the student. The professor will not give out lecture notes, repeat information, nor provide replacement copies of material that was provided during regular class hours. The course includes a combination of individual assignments, group work, lectures, screenings, and readings.

Use of recording technologies in class is prohibited.

A D2L portal has been set up for this course which allows for group correspondence, course announcements, assignment submissions, and other forms of communication. Students are expected to check D2L, and their email, regularly.

Students are expected to arrive to class on time and prepared to work.

Plagiarism, defined as using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it, is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possible suspension or expulsion from the university. Please refer to the following information and make sure you are familiar with the statement on plagiarism provided at the end of the syllabus. <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k-2-1.html>

Course Assessment

Assignments and Evaluation

Participatory Classroom, part I, and part II, worth 20%, due January 16 and April 3.

Quizzes, one on three different days, 15% each, total 45%, on Jan. 23, Feb. 27, Mar. 20.

Final take-home exam, 35%. Due April 10.

Participatory Classroom Assignment Parts One and Two, worth 20%.

*A two-part assignment geared toward building a participatory classroom, worth 20%. Each part of the assignment involves writing a 2 to 3 page double-spaced paper focusing on issues of attendance and participation. In the second paper, the issue of depth of learning will also be addressed. The first part of the assignment, the Overview, is due January 16, at the beginning of class. In this paper, the student will set out their plan for their level of attendance and participation. Considering that this is a participatory classroom, and that the success of a participatory classroom depends on each individual, this assignment will provide the chance for students to set out their intentions for the term. In the second part of the assignment, which is due April 3, at the beginning of class, students will begin by assigning themselves a grade that they believe accurately reflects their attendance, participation and depth of learning. They will explain their rationale for this grade by explaining how they have conducted themselves throughout the semester, in terms of attendance, participation, and depth of learning, and they will also refer to the first paper (intentions and goals set in the first paper will help them frame the second paper). The student's assessment will be considered in light of the instructor's observations, and the instructor will have final say concerning the grade. Due dates are January 16 and April 3, at the beginning of class. Make sure you read Guidelines for the Participatory Classroom Assignment, on our D2L site.

This assignment will help students clarify their role in the participatory classroom, and it will help them clarify why they have chosen to take this course, in terms of considering questions such as: What are your desired learning outcomes? What do you think will be challenging? What issues interest you? For the first part of this assignment, the syllabus, course outline, and initial readings will help provide clarity about these learning outcomes. For the second part of the assignment, students will refer to key scholars and texts that have informed their work through the term.

Three quizzes worth 15% each, for 45%.

In these closed-book short tests, which will take place January 23, February 27, and March 20, students will be asked to explain general concepts, ideas, and theories from the articles they have read that day. This will not involve memorizing word for word from the text, but will be a chance for students to explain these concepts in their own words. Each test is worth 15 percent, adding up to a total of 45 percent of the overall grade. Quizzes will occur at the beginning of class, and will take 45 minutes of the class to complete. If a student notifies the professor ahead of time that they will be missing class on one of these days, that student will be able to make up the assignment. If a student does not notify the professor ahead of time that they will be missing class on one of these days, then that student will not be able to make up the assignment and they will receive 0 on the assignment.

Final Take-home Exam, worth 35%.

The final exam will consist of questions which will allow students to reflect critically on what they have learned in the course. All course material will be covered on this exam. Due date: 10 April at the beginning of class (must be handed in, in person).

It is the student's responsibility to keep a copy of each submitted assignment.

Note: Please hand in your essays directly to your instructor. If it is not possible to do so, a drop box is available in the Philosophy Department, 12th floor of Social Sciences. You will see the instructor's name on one of the boxes. These boxes are emptied every day at 4 p.m., and whatever is inside the box is then stamped with the date.

About the Women's Studies Program

This course may be counted toward a Women's Studies degree. The Women's Studies Program offers Major, Minor, and Honours undergraduate degrees. Housed in the Department of Philosophy, the program is dedicated to offering students a feminist social justice classroom where we can bravely explore issues relating to gender and sexual equity and diversity from many perspectives. For more information, contact the program coordinator (wmstprog@ucalgary.ca) and check out our website: <https://arts.ucalgary.ca/womens-studies>.

The University of Calgary has a number of student clubs and campus centres dedicated to issues of gender and sexual equity and diversity. Here are links to their Facebook sites (please note that the instructors are often members of social media sites):

Content Warning:

Some of the materials and topics in this class will include explicit content (violence; sexuality; profanity; blasphemous, objectionable or illegal conduct). If you feel any materials may cause you distress or severe discomfort, you are encouraged to speak with the professor and/or to take measures to ensure that you feel braver in the classroom. You will not be exempt from any assigned work but we will work together to accommodate your concerns.

This class respects difference and diversity while welcoming thoughtful, critical debate and discussion. No one person's right to their beliefs may supersede another person's right to security and dignity.

When in a classroom dedicated to social justice education, conflict will happen. That is part of a healthy, dynamic, questioning space of learning and discovery. You are encouraged to hold onto your own personal beliefs, but recognize that there will be differences of opinion and experience, and a university classroom holds high standards of research, evidence, and analytical proof.

Students need to listen attentively and critically to the evidence provided in class lectures, readings, discussions, and other materials.

Braver Space Guidelines

"Braver Space" principles recognize that everyone brings different resiliencies and capacities to a group setting. We must all bring our personal bravery into the classroom space, and be mindful of what that means specifically to us. This does not mean sharing or participating in a way that violates personal boundaries (yours or another person's), nor cajoling others into participating in ways that are not conducive to their personal bravery. Rather, it means being respectful, self-aware, and mindful of the classroom dynamic and your place in it. Some guidelines are provided below.

Do not make assumptions about other people's identities and life experiences. That includes but is not limited to race, gender, sexuality, physical ability, mental and emotional wellbeing, age, citizenship status, and reproductivity.

Recognize that language is a powerful tool in social justice education. It also changes as new issues and greater clarity develop. Therefore, if you need to correct language use, do so respectfully; and if you are corrected, accept that correction respectfully.

Make an effort to speak from the position of "I" (not the generalized "you" or "people") and to clarify any statements you make, using verifiable evidence and experience. Making a sweeping judgment on a class or group of people is not acceptable.

Address people without assuming their gender. Some ways to do this:

- Don't refer to groups as guys, ladies, women, men, etc.,
- Refer to individuals whose gender has not been disclosed to you in gender-neutral ways such as "the person who said..."

Address people using the gender pronouns they have indicated for themselves. Offer your gender pronouns to others to make it a braver space to talk about gender pronouns. Some gender pronouns include, but are not limited to:

- they/them/theirs
- she/her/hers
- ze/hir/hirs
- he/him/his
- ey/em/eirs

Provide discrete and succinct content warnings if you will be talking about topics that may be traumatic for some and the content is not already apparent. Examples of such topics could include abuse, violence, addiction, suicide, mental health, transphobia/homophobia/other forms of discriminatory behaviours. An example of wording could be, "Please note that there will be (x) content in my discussion."

Respect your own and others' physical, mental, and emotional boundaries. Please speak up in a respectful way if you are uncomfortable, seek support if you want/need it, and engage in self-care as required and/or desired.

Schedule of Lectures and Readings

This will be handed out the first day of classes.
