Since its origins with the Ancient Greeks, the vocation of Western political philosophy has been to inquire into—in an almost bewildering variety of ways—the proper boundaries and ends of a good human life within a political community. Within this larger vocation, sexual ethics is concerned with articulating those boundaries, objects, and relations which mark out sexual acts, intentions, or relations as “good” rather than “bad”. That is, whether such acts, intentions, or relations contribute to—or at least do not detract from—a life which is, in some way, defensibly choiceworthy. Given this connection between the question of the good life (‘How do I live well?’) and the question of sexual ethics (‘How do I live sexually well?’), it is no surprise that we find sustained and provocative engagements with sexual ethics within the long arc of Western political thought, from the Greeks onwards.

While the Ancient Greeks offer us profound explorations of the place of love, marriage, and friendship within the kosmos (the deep order of things), in this seminar, we will focus on tracing out the various pathways and tributaries that begin in the post-Greek world, and which led to how we think about sexual ethics today. We can organize these pathways and tributaries into three broad sorts:

1. Pre-Modern Christian traditions whose focus is on how desire and the body might be nonetheless integrated into a divine life for us. We will look at Augustine (4th Century CE) and Aquinas (13th Century), and the introduction of marriage and reproductive sex as two key solutions to the need to unify God and body.
2. Early-Modern accounts of sexual ethics, in which the importance of our radical individuality becomes the grounding framework for the exploration of the possibilities and meaning of sex. We will look at John Milton and Mary Astell (17th Century), Immanuel Kant (18th Century), and John Stuart Mill (19th Century)* and their attempts to make sense of how individual fulfilment and yet attachment to another can go together without the destruction of either.

* NB: This year we won't cover JS Mill because of the shortened 12 week semester for Thursday seminar courses.

3. Late- and Post-Modernity in which we focus on two agonistic trends: seeing, sex as a radically constructed, imposed—and therefore also liberatory and reconstructable—shape of selfhood; and seeing sex as grounded in some sort of knowable reality, to which we can also be liberated. Over the final weeks of the seminar, our readings will alternate between these different possibilities. On the side of sex as a radical construction, we'll look at Michel Foucault and Judith Butler; on the side of sex as radically anchored in nature, we'll look at the so-called New Natural Law theory, and Luce Irigaray.

We will begin the course with Marquis de Sade's Philosophy in the Boudoir. Sade's provocative attempt to destroy all possible limits, his extinguishment of the divine, nature, community, and other human beings as valid grounds for a sexual ethic will be used to unsettle all of our assumptions about sexual ethics so that, through the rest of the course, we might think more clearly about what, and what not, those limits might be.

Crosscutting the course—all periods and thinkers—we will see a number of overlapping thematic questions and concerns which may form the basis of your papers:

- What ought the body or nature demand of a sexual ethic, and what ought a sexual ethic to demand of the body or nature?
- What are the goods present in sexual acts and relations? Are they unique or merely instances of some general good other aspects of life also share in?
- What obligation does a political community have to respond to a sexual ethic?

COURSE GOALS:

The purpose of the seminar is not to bring the students to any one particular account of sexual ethics. Instead, through written assignments and in-class discussion, this course will aim at three coordinated goals:

- Informational: to have students gain familiarity with the arguments and positions of the thinkers and texts covered;
- Analytical: to have students be able to analyze the arguments for, explore the implications of, the various thinkers' attempts to ground the boundaries, objects, and institutions of a sexual ethics;
- Critical: to have students develop and be able to philosophically defend a careful and worked-out position with regard to sexual ethics using the intellectual resources gained in the course.

REQUIRED TECHNOLOGY:

You will need a device which will allow you to write and upload your papers to D2L, download indicated course readings, read and possibly send emails.

SUMMARY OF COURSE REQUIREMENTS & GRADING:

A Note on the Essay Assignments
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The essay assignments below are textually interpretative and argumentative; they are not research essays and do not require secondary sources. A detailed information sheet for each of the essays will be made available in class. The essays will be graded on the clarity, brilliance, and organization of the argument, evidence, and interpretation as well as conformity to the instructions and expectations set out in the information sheets. Grammar, spelling, and punctuation matter only insofar as they have an affect on the previously mentioned criteria.

Supporting Documentation and the Use of a Statutory Declaration

As stated in the University Calendar:

Students may be asked to provide supporting documentation for an exemption/special request. This may include, but is not limited to, a prolonged absence from a course where participation is required, a missed course assessment, a deferred examination, or an appeal. Students are encouraged to submit documentation that will support their situation. Supporting documentation may be dependent on the reason noted in their personal statement/explanation provided to explain their situation. This could be medical certificate/documentation, references, police reports, invitation letter, third party letter of support or a statutory declaration etc. The decision to provide supporting documentation that best suits the situation is at the discretion of the student. Students cannot be required to provide specific supporting documentation, such as a medical note.

Students can make a Statutory Declaration as their supporting documentation (available at ucalgary.ca/registrar). This requires students to make a declaration in the presence of a Commissioner for Oaths. It demonstrates the importance of honest and accurate information provided and is a legally binding declaration. Several registered Commissioners for Oaths are available to students at no charge, on campus. For a list of locations to access a Commissioners for Oaths, visit ucalgary.ca/registrar).

Falsification of any supporting documentation will be taken very seriously and may result in disciplinary action through the Academic Discipline regulations or the Student Non-Academic Misconduct policy.

Absence From a Mid-term Examination

Students who are absent from a scheduled term test or quiz for legitimate reasons are responsible for contacting the instructor via email within 48 hours of the missed test to discuss alternative arrangements. A copy of this email may be requested as proof of the attempt to contact the instructor. Any student who fails to do so forfeits the right to a makeup test.

Deferral of a Final Examination

Deferral of a final examination can be granted for reasons of illness, domestic affliction, and unforeseen circumstances, as well as to those with three (3) final exams scheduled within a 24-hour period. Deferred final exams will not be granted to those who sit the exam, who have made travel arrangements that conflict with their exam, or who have misread the examination timetable. The decision to allow a deferred final exam rests not with the instructor but with Enrolment Services. Instructors should, however, be notified if you will be absent during the examination. The Application for Deferred Final Exam, deadlines, requirements and submission instructions can be found on the Enrolment Services website at <https://www.ucalgary.ca/registrar/exams/deferred-exams>.

Reappraisals

The University Calendar states that for reappraisals of graded term work:

“A student who feels that a piece of graded term work (term paper, essay, test, etc.) has been unfairly graded, may have the work reappraised as follows. The student shall discuss the work with the instructor within ten business days of being notified about the mark or of the item's return to the class. If not satisfied, the student shall take the matter to the head of the department offering the course within 2 business days of receiving the decision from the instructor, who will arrange for a reappraisal of the work within the next ten business days. The reappraisal will only be considered if the student provides a detailed rationale that outlines where and for what reason an error is suspected.” See <https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/i-2.html>

The University Calendar states that for reappraisal of academic assessments (final grades):

“A student may request a reappraisal of a final grade. The only element that will be considered is the final assessment(s) that makes up the final mark (e.g., final examination, final project, and final paper). The exception is when a grade for a piece of graded term work is made available to students after the last day of classes for the term in which the course is scheduled; that grade may also be considered in a reappraisal of the final grade.”

“A student seeking a reappraisal of a final grade should first attempt to review the final assessment with the department or faculty offering the course. After which the student shall obtain a Reappraisal of Final Grade form from ucalgary.ca/registrar (under Student Forms). The student must indicate exactly what error was made in marking the final assessment and/or in computing the final grade. The reappraisal will only be considered if the student provides a detailed rationale that outlines where and for what reason an error is suspected." University Regulations

Students are responsible for familiarizing themselves with the University policies found in the Academic Regulations sections of the Calendar at www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/academic-regs.html.

Student Accommodations

Students seeking an accommodation based on disability or medical concerns should contact Student Accessibility Services; SAS will process the request and issue letters of accommodation to instructors. For additional information on support services and accommodations for students with disabilities, visit www.ucalgary.ca/access/.

Students who require an accommodation in relation to their coursework based on a protected ground other than disability should communicate this need in writing to their Instructor.

The full policy on Student Accommodations is available at <http://www.ucalgary.ca/policies/files/policies/student-accommodation-policy.pdf>.

Plagiarism And Other Forms Of Academic Misconduct

Academic misconduct in any form (e.g. cheating, plagiarism) is a serious academic offence that can lead to disciplinary probation, suspension or expulsion from the University. Students are expected to be familiar with the standards surrounding academic honesty; these can be found in the University of Calgary calendar at <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k.html>. Such offences will be taken seriously and reported immediately, as required by Faculty of Arts policy.

Copyright Legislation

As stated in the University of Calgary Calendar, Academic Regulations, "students are required to read the University of Calgary policy on Acceptable Use of Material Protected by Copyright and requirements of the copyright act to ensure they are aware of the consequences of unauthorised sharing of course materials (including instructor notes, electronic versions of textbooks etc.). Students who use material protected by copyright in violation of this policy may be disciplined under the Non-Academic Misconduct Policy."

Instructor Intellectual Property

Course materials created by instructors (including presentations and posted notes, labs, case studies, assignments and exams) remain the intellectual property of the instructor. These materials may NOT be reproduced, redistributed or copied without the explicit consent of the instructor. The posting of course materials to third party websites such as note-sharing sites without permission is prohibited. Sharing of extracts of these course materials with other students enrolled in the course at the same time may be allowed under fair dealing.

Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy (FOIP)

FOIP legislation requires that instructors maintain the confidentiality of student information. In practice, this means that student assignment and tests cannot be left for collection in any public place without the consent of the student. It also means that grades cannot be distributed via email. Final exams are kept by instructors but can be viewed by contacting them or the main office in the Department of Political Science. Any uncollected assignments and tests meant to be returned will be destroyed after six months from the end of term; final examinations are destroyed after one year.

Evacuation Assembly Points

In the event of an emergency evacuation from class, students are required to gather in designated assembly points. Please check the list found at www.ucalgary.ca/emergency-plan/assemblypoints and note the assembly point nearest to your classroom.
