COURSE DESCRIPTION & OBJECTIVES

This course will broadly introduce Japanese cinema, its styles and history. We begin with excerpts from an early silent film of the 1920s and continue on to masterpieces by Japan's foremost directors from the "Golden Age" of cinema (1950s). We examine "New Wave" cinema amidst the changing social and political landscape of the 1960s, and the rise of globalization and social satire in the comedies of the 1980s. We conclude with contemporary works from the current generation of acclaimed directors (1990s to today). A central focus of inquiry will be on contemporary dramas (gendaimono) and how these reflect the social, political, and cultural issues of their time. We will also view and discuss certain filmic genres argued to have originated in Japan, such as anime (Japanese animation), and consider what defines a "national cinema" and how Japan portrays itself (and how it is imagined abroad) through its film culture. Drawing on assigned readings, we use a number of scholarly approaches in the course, including, but not limited to, film studies, literary analysis, and media studies.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

By the end of the course students will have:

- Gained knowledge of and compared a variety of Japanese films, genres, and directors
- Situated these films within their respective social, historical, and cultural context

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

1. Plagiarism is a serious offence, the penalty for which is an F on the assignment and possibly also an F in the course, academic probation, or requirement to withdraw. Plagiarism exists when:

- a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test);
- b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author;
- c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or
- d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted."

Plagiarism occurs not only when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement but also when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. A bibliography is insufficient to establish which portions of the student's work are taken from external sources; footnotes or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose.

2. Cheating at tests or examinations includes but is not limited to dishonest or attempted dishonest conduct such as speaking to other candidates or communicating with them under any circumstances whatsoever; bringing into the examination room any textbook, notebook, memorandum, other written material or mechanical or electronic device not authorized by the examiner; writing an examination or part of it, or consulting any person or materials outside the confines of the examination room without permission to do so, or leaving answer papers exposed to view, or persistent attempts to read other students' examination papers.

3. Other academic misconduct includes, but is not limited to, tampering or attempts to tamper with examination scripts, class work, grades and/or class records; failure to abide by directions by an instructor regarding the individuality of work handed in; the acquisition, attempted acquisition, possession, and/or distribution of examination materials or information not authorized by the instructor; the impersonation of another student in an examination or other class assignment; the falsification or fabrication of clinical or laboratory reports; the non-authorized tape recording of lectures.

4. Any student who voluntarily and consciously aids another student in the commission of one of these offences is also guilty of academic misconduct.
