COURSE DESCRIPTION & OBJECTIVES

In this course we look at a wide range of manga (print comics), anime (animation), and videogames from Japan. We critically analyze these “texts” and question the extent to which these various genres and narratives are representative of “Japanese culture,” and the influence they have had on it. Manga, anime, and games have related but distinct histories. Thus, a central focus of this course will be on examining the similarities and differences between these forms at the level of “media.” We will consider what makes each of these forms unique and how stories can be adapted and told differently utilizing each platform. Drawing on assigned readings, we use a number of analytical perspectives in the course, including, but not limited to, literary studies, media studies, and history.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

By the end of the course students will have:

- Gained knowledge of important events, issues, and themes in the cultural history of modern Japan
- Understood the development histories and construction of three forms of Japanese visual culture
- Read about and critically evaluated the aesthetics, narratives, and unique media characteristics of a wide variety of manga, anime, and videogames
- Gained experience in both the creative processes involved in making these media and the analytical thinking needed for writing about these works within a scholarly context

REQUIRED TEXTS

All required readings (and most recommended ones) will be provided on D2L. There is no need to buy anything at the bookstore.

COURSE NOTES

Regular attendance and in-class participation is expected for this course.

- Students are naturally expected to come to each class having already read all the required readings and prepared to discuss them.
- Attendance will be taken daily and lateness and absences will negatively affect your grade.
- Readings, lecture notes, the syllabus, and announcements will be posted on D2L. You are expected to check the course website regularly. Please make sure the email address registered with U of C is one you check frequently or you may miss out on class announcements!

WARNING(!)

One salient aspect of many genres of manga and anime is open representation of violence, sex, and sexuality. Consequently, in some classes we will be discussing and looking at potentially disturbing materials in order to understand their cultural significance. If you will be too uncomfortable to read/view materials or take part in these discussions, you should not take this course. (If you are under 18, you must receive permission from the instructor to take this course)

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

1. Plagiarism is a serious offence, the penalty for which is an F on the assignment and possibly also an F in the course, academic probation, or requirement to withdraw. Plagiarism exists when:

- a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test);
- b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author;
- c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or
- d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted."

Plagiarism occurs not only when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement but also when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. A bibliography is insufficient to establish which portions of the student's work are taken from external sources; footnotes or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose.

2. Cheating at tests or examinations includes but is not limited to dishonest or attempted dishonest conduct such as speaking to other candidates or communicating with them under any circumstances whatsoever; bringing into the examination room any textbook, notebook, memorandum, other written material or mechanical or electronic device not authorized by the examiner; writing an examination or part of it, or consulting any person or materials outside the confines of the examination room without permission to do so, or leaving answer papers exposed to view, or persistent attempts to read other students' examination papers.

3. Other academic misconduct includes, but is not limited to, tampering or attempts to tamper with examination scripts, class work, grades and/or class records; failure to abide by directions by an instructor regarding the individuality of work handed in; the acquisition, attempted acquisition, possession, and/or distribution of examination materials or information not authorized by the instructor; the impersonation of another student in an examination or other class assignment; the falsification or fabrication of clinical or laboratory reports; the non-authorized tape recording of lectures.

4. Any student who voluntarily and consciously aids another student in the commission of one of these offences is also guilty of academic misconduct.

DISABILITIES AND ACADEMIC ACCOMMODATION

It is the student's responsibility to request academic accommodations. Students with a documented disability who may require academic accommodation and have not registered with the Disability Resource Centre should contact their office at 220-8237. Students who have not registered with the Disability Resource Centre are not eligible for formal academic accommodation. Students also required to discuss their needs with the instructor no later than fourteen (14) days after the start of this course.

WRITING ACROSS THE CURRICULUM

Writing skills should cross all disciplines. Students are expected to do a substantial amount of writing in their courses and, where appropriate, instructors can and should use writing and the grading thereof as a factor in the evaluation of student work. The services provided by the Writing Centre in the Effective Writing Office (<http://www.efwr.ucalgary.ca/>) can be utilized by all undergraduate and graduate students who feel they require further assistance.
