DESCRIPTION

The last of a three-semester sequence of Russian language courses that, while further strengthening the students' knowledge of the basics of modern Russian they have already acquired, will also serve as "a launching pad" into a more advanced stage of language proficiency. It will focus on both, mastering the students' practical language skills, and developing a deeper structural understanding of the language. Students will learn a more advanced level of grammar and acquire a broader vocabulary of modern Russian.

Prerequisites: RUSS 301

OBJECTIVES

The course will prepare the students to venture into more complex, real life language interactions with native speakers, and enable them not only to follow unadapted texts and media in the target language, but also to express themselves in Russian with more ease and sophistication.

COURSE EXPECTATIONS

Please refer to D2L for on-going information, such as homework assignments and test schedules.

This being a language class, regular attendance and timely homework submission are expected and necessary for steady progress. The instructor should be informed of any reasons for prolonged absence.

Homework for the week is expected to be handed the following Monday at the latest. Regular homework is of utmost importance in order to follow the pace and succeed in this course.

Missed tests, quizzes and assignments will be given a grade of F unless a student can show that the absence was for legitimate reasons.

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

1. Plagiarism is a serious offence, the penalty for which is an F on the assignment and possibly also an F in the course, academic probation, or requirement to withdraw. Plagiarism exists when:

a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test);

b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author;

c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or

d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted."

Plagiarism occurs not only when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement but also when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. A bibliography is insufficient to establish which portions of the student's work are taken from external sources; footnotes or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose.

2. Cheating at tests or examinations includes but is not limited to dishonest or attempted dishonest conduct such as speaking to other candidates or communicating with them under any circumstances whatsoever; bringing into the examination room any textbook, notebook, memorandum, other written material or mechanical or electronic device not authorized by the examiner; writing an examination or part of it, or consulting any person or materials outside the confines of the examination room without permission to do so, or leaving answer papers exposed to view, or persistent attempts to read other students' examination papers.

3. Other academic misconduct includes, but is not limited to, tampering or attempts to tamper with examination scripts, class work, grades and/or class records; failure to abide by directions by an instructor regarding the individuality of work handed in; the acquisition, attempted acquisition, possession, and/or distribution of examination materials or information not authorized by the instructor; the impersonation of another student in an examination or other class assignment; the falsification or fabrication of clinical or laboratory reports; the non-authorized tape recording of lectures.

4. Any student who voluntarily and consciously aids another student in the commission of one of these offences is also guilty of academic misconduct.
