DESCRIPTION

Introduction to contemporary rural Russian culture through research projects and life experience. This course is offered during Spring/Summer Sessions in Russia.

OBJECTIVES

Students will have the unique opportunity to do fieldwork in a rural area, and compare Russian rural transportation, housing, shopping, health care, educational and cultural institutions to their urban equivalents. The course will introduce students to the basics of oral history, defined in The Columbia Encyclopedia as "the compilation of historical data through interviews with participants in, or observers of, significant events or times". It will involve each of them in interviewing in Russian one member of Russian society who has experienced the transition from the Soviet to the post-Soviet way of life in a rural setting, and interpreting the interview data and their fieldwork experience in light of the literature they read before leaving for Russia. The goal of students' fieldwork experience will be to provide answers to two questions: (1) How do people live their daily lives in a small Russian provincial town in the twenty-first century? (2) How did the transition from the Soviet to the post-Soviet period affect our consultants?

OUTCOMES

Students will improve their proficiency in the Russian language, acquire in-depth knowledge of a small Russian provincial town, get first-hand experience with and an appreciation of Russian standards of rural living, develop sensitivities to cultural nuances and start adjusting their own utterances to differentiated environments.

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

1. Plagiarism is a serious offence, the penalty for which is an F on the assignment and possibly also an F in the course, academic probation, or requirement to withdraw. Plagiarism exists when:

- a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test);
- b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author;
- c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or
- d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted." Plagiarism occurs not only when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement but also when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. A bibliography is insufficient to establish which portions of the student's work are taken from external sources; footnotes or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose.

2. Cheating at tests or examinations includes but is not limited to dishonest or attempted dishonest conduct such as speaking to other candidates or communicating with them under any circumstances whatsoever; bringing into the examination room any textbook, notebook, memorandum, other written material or mechanical or electronic device not authorized by the examiner; writing an examination or part of it, or consulting any person or materials outside the confines of the examination room without permission to do so, or leaving answer papers exposed to view, or persistent attempts to read other students' examination papers.

3. Other academic misconduct includes, but is not limited to, tampering or attempts to tamper with examination scripts, class work, grades and/or class records; failure to abide by directions by an instructor regarding the individuality of work handed in; the acquisition, attempted acquisition, possession, and/or distribution of examination materials or information not authorized by the instructor; the impersonation of another student in an examination or other class assignment; the falsification or fabrication of clinical or laboratory reports; the non-authorized tape recording of lectures.

WRITING ACROSS THE CURRICULUM

Writing skills should cross all disciplines. Students are expected to do a substantial amount of writing in their courses and, where appropriate, instructors can and should use writing and the grading thereof as a factor in the evaluation of student work. The services provided by the Writing Centre in the Effective Writing Office (<http://www.efwr.ucalgary.ca/>) can be utilized by all undergraduate and graduate students who feel they require further assistance.
